

The Press Democrat

14 Sonoma County spots that are said to be haunted

JANET BALICKI WEBER

FOR THE PRESS DEMOCRAT | October 25, 2018,

(10 of 15) Founded in 1857, Sonoma's Buena Vista Winery embraces the possibility that ghosts haunt its hallowed walls. It holds haunted cellar parties to explore the idea in its stone-walled champagne cellar. (ERIK CASTRO/ FOR SONOMA MAGAZINE)

It's nearly Halloween in Wine Country. Are you in the mood for a good scare?

From parks to wineries to schoolhouses, a number of places around Sonoma County are said to be haunted. Paranormal activity, such as moving objects, voices, footsteps and ghostly figures, has been reported in some of the county's oldest locales.

Did you know that twinkling blue lights have been seen at Petaluma's Phoenix Theater and Korbel Champagne Cellars in Guerneville? Or that a female ghost supposedly haunts those who take her seat at Sonoma's Sebastiani Theatre?

Click through our gallery above to explore some of the other spots around Sonoma County that are said to be haunted.

Note: This article is done in fun, and neither confirms nor denies the presence of ghosts or spirits.