

San Francisco Chronicle

FOOD // WINE, BEER & SPIRITS

There's a new ultra-expensive wine tasting experience in Wine Country, plus 8 other developments

Jess Lander

Aug. 5, 2022 | Updated: Aug. 5, 2022 8:29 a.m.

An old train depot gets a new life

Serial entrepreneur Jean Charles Boisset — who owns Raymond Vineyards, Buena Vista Winery, Oakville Grocery and many other Wine Country ventures — has opened his latest restoration project: the historic Calistoga Depot. Boisset has a soft spot for returning relics to glory and is attempting just that with the 1868 train station, which now houses a mercantile and wine shop. Depot Provisions also serves coffee, tea and beer, plus lunch and breakfast items like sandwiches, pizza and picnic supplies. The bright, white and minimalist space looks quite similar to the Oakville Grocery but without the line out the door — for now.