

Fodor's Travel

At these 11 celeb-owned vineyards and wineries, you can sip fine wines with a side of stardom.

Celebrities are busy people. I mean, they're celebrities for gosh sakes; they're famous for a reason! They put themselves out there for the world to see their talent(s) and, for the most part, their talents have gotten them pretty far. But, don't forget: celebrities are PEOPLE as well. As a matter of fact, they're just like us! OK well maybe not JUST like us (I don't own a winery, do you?), but they have favorite pastimes just like we do (I like badminton). These 11 celebrities happen to be pretty big fans of vino and, believe it or not, they've opened wineries.

4 OF 11

John Legend

Husband of Chrissy Teigen (oh, and pretty decent musician) John Legend owns the Napa Valley-based LVE-Legend Vineyard Exclusive. It's part of a partnership with Raymond Vineyards. With over 300 acres of grapes in its repertoire, Raymond Vineyards offers multiple tours and experiences, like a "Blending Room," where each visitor can craft his/her own red wine.