NASHVILLE, Tenn. (April 3, 2019) - The T.J. Martell Foundation Young Professionals Advisory Council (YPAC) will present the fourth annual Bed Race Nashville on May 7, 2019 with kickoff at 5:00 p.m. The event benefits cancer research and netted over $70,000 last year. Team registration is now open at www.bedracenashville.com.

The Bed Race Nashville is a competition in which teams build and decorate their own beds to race at 740 Cowan Street, Nashville, TN all in support of cancer research. Teams that raise the most money can earn “head starts” on race day. Exciting prizes will be awarded to the winning team at a post-race ceremony with delicious food and drink generously provided by Jim 'n Nick's BBQ & Brews. Additional awards will be presented for “Best Decorated” and “Best in Spirit.” The “Shining Star” award will be presented to the individual who raises the most money through online fundraising.

“I want to be part of the generation who puts Cancer to Bed,” stated Kindal Jumper, YPAC Treasurer. Jumper continues, “The bed race is different than most fundraisers and that is what I love about it. Teams get together, build beds, and then put them to action in a race. As a cancer survivor myself anything to help raise money for cancer research -- count me in!”

Sponsors include News Channel 2, Jim 'n Nicks BBQ and Nashville Association of Talent Directors (NATD). For more information on how to donate to a team or get involved, visit www.bedracenashville.com.
