Sale Management cannot make guarantees on things they do not witness firsthand. If a horse is a “no sale” in the ring and you follow the owner out back, discuss things, then come to a purchase agreement, THERE ARE NO SALE BARN GUARANTEES as we have no idea what was said out back between the buyer and the seller. If you want the guarantee, be the high bidder!

Should you buy a horse sold to be sound and find any of the above conditions ONLY not met, you MUST contact Sale Management within 72 hours of the sale.

Soundness does not guarantee ride!!! Under no circumstances is any guarantee of any kind made regarding any horse and its riding abilities/suitability. There are far too many variables when it comes to rider and horse to predict or guarantee how a particular horse & rider get along. The soundness guarantee is exactly that – soundness only!

AMIGO

"Amigo" has been one of our go to horses this past year. He spent the whole lesson and show season with us last year and has always been a solid citizen. He is the sweetest and most affection horse and truly loves kids. We ride him western, english and bareback. They have done tricks with him and all kinds of late night barn shenanigans. We have put complete beginners on him for our trail rides and he has never let us down. Amigo is very well broke with tons of buttons but not at all complicated to ride. Very cute western jog and slow lope. Neck reins, works off leg pressure, side passes are just a few of the polished buttons he has. Amigo has proven himself to be an exceptionally nice trail horse time after time. We have used him for numerous overnight camping trips. He stands at the hitch rail like a perfect gentleman. One of our stables programs entails taking very novice and truly beginner riders out on organized real trail rides. We have trusted him with the job of allowing these green riders to get to safely enjoy themselves and having fun, while experiencing their first taste of trail riding. He has gotten so many new riders hooked on how magical and relaxing it is to spend time on a horse going through nature. He crosses water, streams, large creeks, all types of terrain, doesn't hurry or rush up and down hills and is sure footed just like you would expect any seasoned trail horse to be. As great as he is in a group setting Amigo is also used to and confident to be ridden out alone on trails. He does not get nervous or anxious and is the same solid horse no matter how many are out riding. Amigo is super quiet in the barn and gets along with all horses. He has no vices or bad habits when stalled and loves to have turn out time. He is considered to be low to mid on the pecking order, and loves ponies! He is very well mannered on the ground and has been so good with the lesson students and trail riding groups learn how to brush and tack up a horse. Very patient and sweet natured. Good for the farrier and all aspects of handling and care. We have truly enjoyed having him in our barn but as our program shifts into a different and more competitive direction, Amigo gets to find his new family for them to love him as much as we have. He is a very safe and trustworthy trail riding mount, and a perfect fit for those beginner type families or the rider needing that confidence builder to boost their confidence so they can relax and enjoy themselves out on the trails again.
