

Giving old batteries new life.

Under a government-approved battery stewardship plan in PEI, Call2Recycle[®] operates the consumer battery collection and recycling program throughout the province.

To continue offering a convenient battery recycling program, an Environmental Handling Fee (EHF) is applied to the sale of new household batteries and batteries sold with or in select products.

The EHF's are used to administer the program and ensure batteries can continue to be responsibly recycled at the end of their useful life and kept out of landfills. The valuable metals and materials from the old recycled batteries are used in the manufacturing of new products, including batteries.

What is an Environmental Handling Fee?

An Environmental Handling Fee, or EHF is a recycling cost applied to handle the responsible collection and end-of-life management of that product.

How are the EHF's determined?

Fees are determined by factoring in all costs to manage the collection, transportation and responsible recycling of each specific type of battery.

Who pays for the EHF's? Will the EHF be on my receipt?

The first supplier into the province, which can be a retailer, wholesaler, distributor or manufacturer, is responsible for EHF remittal. Whether the first supplier decides to make the EHF visible is left at their discretion.

What types of batteries are subject to an EHF?

All stand-alone primary (single-use) and rechargeable batteries accepted in the Call2Recycle program are subject to an EHF, as well as batteries sold with or in portable flashlights and spotlights, E-Toys, smoke and carbon monoxide detectors and garden/construction/renovation tools.

How do I recycle my batteries? What happens to them?

It's easy! Simply drop them off at one of Call2Recycle's established collection sites. Batteries are collected, sorted and recycled into new products. Nothing ends up in landfills.
