Statement of Methodology: 20/20 Insight, LLC surveyed 665 Metro Atlanta Georgia voters in the 10 counties (Cherokee, Clayton, Cobb, DeKalb, Douglas, Fayette, Fulton, Gwinnett, Henry, Rockdale) that make up the Regional Transportation Tax District that includes the city of Atlanta (some groups were oversampled and weighed down to 595) from Feb 2-4, 2011. The survey's margin of error is +/- 4.0% at a confidence level of 95%.

20/20 Insight, LLC conducts surveys using automated interactive voice response (IVR) technology. This is what is often referred to in the media as a “robo poll”. No live human operators spoke to respondents, who used their touch-tone phones to answer questions. Every respondent heard the exact same prompt for each question, except where noted a computer randomized the order in which they heard questions, ballot choices or names. Respondents had up to 10 seconds to answer each question – at that point (or if an invalid answer was offered) the question was re-read in its entirety.

On average for this survey, respondents spent 12 minutes 51 seconds on the phone, and slightly more than 18% of those called who initially agreed to take the survey did not complete it due to dropoff or some other factor. The frequencies reported in this survey include the weighted results from ONLY the 665/595 respondents who answered every question through Q12. Additional demographic weighting was applied to the survey using statistical information available from the 2008 Exit Poll for the Georgia General Election available on www.cnn.com and the list of registered voters maintained and sold by the Georgia Secretary of State's Election Division. 83% of poll respondents had a final weight applied of less than 1.5. A weighting of 1 would mean no weighting was applied.

This weighting, and other factors such as refusal to be interviewed may introduce additional error that is more difficult to quantify. 20/20 Insight, LLC employed multiple callbacks over successive days and at different hours during the day and also attempted to convert those who initially decline to participate in order to reduce any respondent bias introduced by only interviewing the subset of the general population that answers a call on any random night. The sampling frame was supplied by 20/20 Insight and was a list based sample of Georgia registered voters that had phone numbers appended by a leading national data vendor.
