Junior Patriots March To A Different Tune.

A Clinton News Network Exclusive. On a remote hilltop in New Hampshire, Camp Constitution instills right-wing values in youth campers who range in age from 3 - 12. We acquired exclusive footage of the Junior campers in full uniform sporting muskets and marching in formation. Area citizens are outraged at what they claim is outright brainwashing. The militia-intraining is commanded by Edith Craft, a retired school teacher and wife of the radical Rev. Steve "Kanye West" Craft. ★

Wiffle Ball 2020

All-Stars Win 8-7 over Braves

Gavin struck out to lead off but Megan followed a double and made it around to score the first run of the game. Bene Godfrey joined the fun as he scored the third run. Seven runs were scored in the first half of the opening inning. Tiny Tank Julia Daniels was acrowd favorite. They went wild for her as she made solid contact. Too bad she was out at first base to end the inning.

Due to injury, Zach Kotiadis transferred to the Redskins. Gabe Kalis singled to start off the second. A foul ball sent Bene Godfrey leaping down a large incline. He flew down the embankment like a graceful dove as he attempted to catch a foul pop.

The All Stars second was led off with a single by Christina Carter. Mr Shurtleff drove her home with a double.

The Brave second began with 'a double, followed by a base clearing hit by Mr. Affleck. When the damage was done, the Braves were trailing 8-4 . Mr. Krutov then scored and Mr. Affleck drew a throw from Mr. Shurtleff as he attempted to dive back to third. The ball struck Mr. Affleck in the head and bounced into left field resulting in another run. In the top of the third, a defensive substitution sent Andrew Affleck to play first base. The masterful move by the Braves manager resulted in consecutive ground outs. The first involved a collision between Andrew and Megan Rokicki who was out by half a step.

Down to their final inning and trailin 86, little Marlee Newman was tug out at the plate trying to advance three bases on a single hit. After scoring a run and getting to within a single ru n of tying the score, the game ended on a strike out by Caden Nooney.★

Annual Wiffle Ball Tournament -This year's annual wiffleball tournament pitted "Shurtleff's Redskin AllStars" vs. "Affleck's Bush League Braves". The Redskins took full advantage of a rusty Braves squad that seemed to forget how to catch and throw the ball by plating seven in the first.

The Braves answered with a pair of runs of their own in the bottom of the first. From that point on the Braves owned the Skins. The skins were held to just a single run in the final two innings. The Braves added four runs in the second inning and scored lone run in the third falling short by a single run. That run, was thrown out at the plate early in the final stanza.

Shurtleff was quoted after the game "It was like Washington's Army, just as the Braves were ready to win, the nd kicked up converted all their hits into pop-ups."

LOCAL ★ POLICE ★ Part 2

American Police State Rising

In part 1 we laid out the 7 steps necessary to the creation of a National Police State in the United States. In part 2 we shall look at how those 7 steps are evolving today.

1. CRISIS. On September 11, 2001, a series of attacks targeted the World Trade Center and the Pentagon.

This was the single deadliest day in U.S. law enforcement history. Seventy-two police officers were killed responding to the terrorist attacks in New York City and Washington, D.C.

2. AID. Immediately following the 9/11 attacks, pooling its vast resources, the federal government provided aid through the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). All commercial and non-commercial flights were grounded.

Units of the U.S. National Guard were deployed and stationed alongside New York City and Port Authority police at major travel and transportation centers, such as New York's Penn Station, Port Authority Bus Terminal, and Grand Central Station.

3. LEGISLATION. Within a little over a month after the attacks, Congress passed and President George W. Bush signed the Patriot Act, which authorized warrantless searches and wiretaps, as well as many other invasions of privacy.

The following year, in November 2002, Congress passed and President Bush signed the Homeland Security Act, which authorized the creation of the Department of Homeland Security (DHS).

Many months earlier, on March 11, 2002, President Bush had signed Homeland Security Presidential Directive 3, which created the Homeland Security Advisory System. Moreover, post 9/11, Congress passed other measures providing funds to the DHS for assisting local police and firefighters with training and exercises, standards and guidelines, and financial grants for hiring additional personnel and buying emergency equipment.

4. PROPAGANDA. Many radical groups emerged with a campaign against local police, such as the ANSWER coalition, New Black Panther Party, Party for Socialism and Liberation, Revolutionary Communist Party, and the Universal Zulu Nation. In 2011, the Party for Socialism and Liberation officially stated:

"Police brutality is a symptom of the capitalist disease. Socialist revolution is the cure."

5. INDOCTRINATION. In order to share information and work closely with local law enforcement, the Department of Homeland Security has created Fusion Centers.

Fusion Centers are information and analysis dispensers that serve as transmission belts from the federal government to state, local, tribal, and territorial governments and private sector partners for the gathering and sharing of threat-related information. Since their creation in 2003, at least 72 known fusion centers have been set up throughout the country.

One such fusion center release the MIAC report for distribution to local police stating in part:

Rightwing extremism in the United States can be broadly divided into those groups, movements, and adherents that are primarily hate-oriented... and those that are mainly antigovernment, rejecting federal authority in favor of state or local authority, or rejecting government authority entirely. It may include groups and individuals that are dedicated to a single issue, such as opposition to abortion or immigration.

6. IMPLEMENTATION. Congress has also continued to provide funds to the Department of Homeland Security and the Office of Justice Programs for direct financial aid to local police as well as providing them with real or questionable threat intelligence.
7. NATIONALIZATION. On July 2, 2008, while campaigning for the office of president, then-U.S. Senator Barack Obama told a crowd of supporters in Colorado:

We cannot continue to rely only on our military in order to achieve the national security objectives that we've set. We've got to have a civilian national security force that's just as powerful, just as strong, just as well-funded.

Other instruments of implementation include:

- Federal Protective Service (FPS)
- Ready Reserve Corps (Established in Obamacare)

While it is impossible to establish a date upon which a national police force would be completely installed, it is abundantly clear that the process is underway. ★

★ POLITICS ★ OF ★ SCIENCE ★

On July 21, 1925, the so-called “Monkey Trial” ended in Dayton, Tennessee, with John T. Scopes found guilty of violating state law for teaching Darwin’s Theory of Evolution. Today is the 95th anniversary of that decision; a decision that was later overturned. To be more accurate, however, Scopes was charged for teaching that man’s origin was from a lower life-form. No other aspects of the Theory of Evolution violated the Butler Act under which he was charged.

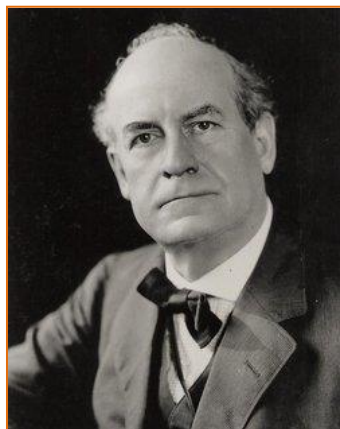

But why is the trial (widely accepted as “the Trial of the Century”) important today? It is especially important today because the propaganda around this case, which is derived greatly from the play and subsequent movie “Inherit The Wind”, provided much of the impetus for the main stream opinion that science offers more to society than religion. It gave science an edge in the battle between religion and reason that was initiated most distinctly during the enlightenment period.

While considering this anniversary, my attention was drawn to the Covid-19 pandemic. Nowhere is it more evident that science dictates politics more than religion in the modern world. It is the scientists that are making all the decisions. Consider, in Pennsylvania, state liquor stores were open and deemed essential while churches and worship services were shutdown. The rules of our Governors were justified, not on constitutional considerations, but by scientific facts.

This reminded me of an article in the April 21, 2014 issue of The New American Magazine entitled, When Science Treads on Religion. Allow me to insert a few paragraphs from the article here:

[Yet even] Science at its best, practiced by the most faith-filled researchers, cannot even begin to fill religion’s shoes. The reason why was explained beautifully by William Jennings Bryan in a statement released to the media in the wake of the 1925 Scopes Trial:

Science is a magnificent force, but it is not a teacher of morals. It can perfect machinery, but it adds no moral restraints to protect society from the misuse of the machine. It can also build gigantic intellectual ships, but it constructs no moral rudders for the control of [the] storm-tossed human vessel. It not only fails to supply the spiritual element needed but some of its unproven hypotheses rob the ship of its compass and thus endanger its cargo. In war, science has proven itself an evil genius ... thus making the battlefield three times as bloody as it was before; but science does not teach brotherly love.... If civilization is to be saved from the wreckage threatened by intelligence not consecrated by love, it must be saved by the moral code of the meek and lowly Nazarene. His teachings, and His teachings alone, can solve the problems that vex the heart and perplex the world.

Without a doubt, unless science takes that greatest of leaps across the great divide and learns to observe the spiritual world as it now observes germs and bacteria — and can also thus read divine law — it will never be able to do religion’s work. For, science only tells us what we can do; not what we should. Morals aren’t revealed through microscopes; principles don’t reside in Petri dishes. One cannot prove that murder is wrong scientifically. Oh, sure, people have balked at this assertion, at which point we’d go on that materialist merry-go-round. They might say, “But murder hurts others,” to which I’ll respond, “Prove that it’s wrong to hurt others”; they might follow up with, “Well, it hurts society and can lead to social breakdown,” and I’ll retort, “Prove that is wrong.” And ‘round and ‘round it goes, and where it stops the thinker knows: with the axiom that Truth exists. And Truth — properly understood as universal, eternal, and unchangeable — implies God.

And so as the technocrats continue to gain fame and power in modern society, it may serve you well to remember the words of William Jennings Bryan. Keep your constitution close and your faith closer. While science can provide a degree of progress in day to day life, it can also present a myriad of ethical questions which science itself is ill equipped to handle. Keep in mind, no creature has a higher intellect than Satan himself. But his intellect would hardly qualify him as an expert in moral theology. ★

-- Mark Affleck with excerpts from the April 21, 2014 issue of The New American Magazine entitled, When Science Treads on Religion

The Agenda 21 Challenge

At Camp Constitution 2019, a challenge was issued to the campers from camp speaker and Agenda 21 expert Ms. Debbie Bacigalupi. Eight campers took up the challenge; now with Camp Constitution 2020 beginning three campers and Ms. Bacigalupi are wrapping up the challenge. In addition to weekly meetings, (and recently biweekly meetings) here is what they've accomplished:

Ben Soon: Will present this coming Thursday on Agenda 21 and has created a website for the Truth From the Youth podcast.

Gus Kalis: Created the Truth From the Youth podcast and takes every opportunity to shoehorn Agenda 21 into his daily conversations.

Stephen Mauder: Presented a Keynote presentation to his school on the dangers of Agenda 21 and co-hosts the Truth From the Youth pod cast with Gus.

Debbie Bacigalupi: Founded the entire project and has somehow managed to keep three procrastinators in line long enough to accomplish all of the above. Additionally, she has secured funding and guest speakers such as Marc Morano and John Seville for the weekly meetings, while educating people on Agenda 21 the whole time.

As the project comes full circle, I can speak for the whole group when I say not only have we learned invaluable knowledge about the evils of Agenda 21, but we have had fun along the way. ★

DRIPS

A drip is not just a runny nose or a leaky faucet. A Drip is a dividend reinvestment plan that allows all Americans to participate in the economic plan that has made America a rich nation and all the other English speaking peoples rich. It allows any citizen to participate in the economic miracle that is America. Almost every equity listed on the New York Stock Exchange, the American Stock Exchange, and many other regional and over the counter exchanges permits an individual to purchase one share of stock and elect to have dividends reinvested usually at little or no cost in that equity. This allows you to participate in the theory that even a small amount over time becomes a large amount.

So where does the idea for limited liability company come from? Unfortunately the genius who proposed this concept has had his name lost to history. He was a Netherlander who allowed his fellow countrymen to participate in the wealth generated by his fellow entrepreneurs. A limited liability company means that the investor can never lose more than his initial investment. The Dutch being close to the English in geography and the fact that their royal families became inter-connected, allowed these ideas to be perpetuated throughout the English Speaking world.

At a time when some writers are decrying the lack of economics being taught in our homes and schools, dedicated teachers will instill in their students the concepts of saving and preparing for the future. Those who wish to learn and participate are advised to check out the MOTLEY FOOL website and pay attentio~, to the discussion on dividend reinvestment plans. How does one know which equities in which to invest? Simply-look around you. The housewife purchasing groceries and items for her family knows good items for items not so good. The man who drives a truck knows a good truck from a not so good truck. All of us need electricity, we all need tooth paste and toilet paper, soap and razors. Who manufactures them the best?

Why does it matter to a company that there be wide ownership of their companies? Stock holders hold companies and their executives accountable. Many companies have had to bend to the will of their shareholders, both in economic and social policies.

And what advantage does the individual shareholder have? He can truly say that he is an employer and that those who work for the company he owns are his employees and he realizes that while they are working for their bread, they are working for his bread. Other peoples' work and other peoples' money can be used to the advantage of the individual. In the ideal world, workers should be encouraged to participate in the growth of their company and realize the gains they and their fellow workers have.

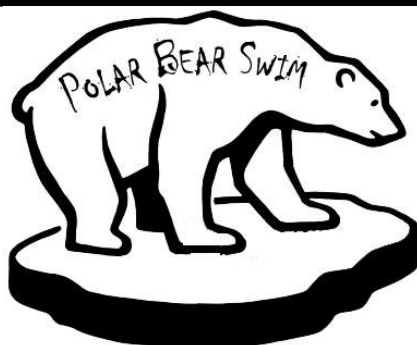

So a digression: My brothers and I were fortunate to grow up in a family of privilege where we had an interested father and a dedicated mother who put us all first. Our basic economics was from home schooling. Our interested father had a favorite 4 letter word beginning with S-SAVE. We all admitted he used another word beginning with S more frequently, but he did teach us to save.

Later in life, my economics lesson was enhanced by attending annual shareholder meetings for the companies which graced my portfolio. One example, at Coca-Cola shareholders meeting the first 40 rows of the auditorium was filled with millionaires, all of whom started out driving trucks or working in bottling plants. They all had one thing in common. They invested in Coca-Cola stock. Their families all live in nice homes, drive nice cars, go to nice schools and take nice vacations and they continue to accumulate Coca-Cola stock through DRIPS. ★

Monday's Campfire

The Jr. Patriots, under the direction of The Constitution Lady (Mrs. Bonnie Wilder), learned how to sing and present her original lyrics for the Monday night campfire. The tune is familiar to all of us who watched the Mickey Mouse Club on our little tv's in the 1950s.

Our second night of campfire was another successful event. It showcased our camps firstclass talent. Evangeline Herrygers narrated an Australian Sunrise poem . Mr. Joshua Vileniskis played a request hymn on the violin . Mrs. White also performed on violin .

Our regularly scheduled campfire schedule was interrupted by a Clinton News Network Election Special. The skit explained that due to the Corona Virus outbreak, no presidential debate could be scheduled. Instead, coverage of the Presidential Foot Race was provided. The main contestants were President Trump, Joe Biden and Bernie Sanders. Poor Bernie fell dead in his attempt to circle the White House. Joe Biden got a late start and actually ran in the wrong direction, otherwise, he would have fared better. A cameo appearance was made by Kanye West (Rev Craft).

Jokes were told. Favorites were sung. The low light of the evening was a staff rendition of "Ghost Riders." Andrew Affleck performed the Star-Spangled Banner on guitar. ★

“I AM ALIVE”

By Bene Godfrey

I am alive, helio, I AM alive.
Please choose me, mom,
I need you to survive
I want you present
taking my first breath
My soul will scream
in facing wrongful death.
But pressures forced,
a decision must be made.
“Abort, abort!”
say those who are afraid
To give a chance for what may come to be,
So hope was lost
in choosing life for me.
Remorse debuts, exacerbating shame
Forget me not,
the one you failed to name
You seek for Truth
to take away your pain
You find The Way,
and He removes your stain.
Forgiveness grants you, mom,
a brand new start
One day we'll meet and never be apart.

Boys Dorm A

You definitely picked it up this time . The COVID man was phenomenal. The mask and the shoes are very patriotic. We're not sure if the COVID man is resting or a victim so we're not sure if we should quarantine your room or not. We didn't want to roll him over to see if he had a cape. Is he a hero or a victim? Please keep us posted . I'm sure Mr. Shurtleff is going to want to know ASAP! The shorts are gathering a little dust. You might want to move it around a bit. Neat. Clean, Orderly. Nice job today. Are you guys sticking with the name Boys Dorm A?★

Corona Patriotic Edition

Smart move to accent the Lego Display. We now understand what the tie is for. Great use of the tie as a table runner for the USA center-piece. Paper chains, burlap, patriotic flags? You guys obviously turned it up a notch. Your efforts regarding the toothbrush display was really thoughtful. ★

Score: 9.5

Girls Room 35

The beds were disheveled. Your efforts thus far have been dismal. The elephant in the room, however, with his back to us, scorning us; gave us a clear indication of your lack of interest and patriotism. We took the opportunity to secure the dog with your leash. What exactly is that leash for? We took the point away for the flag that you took down. We gave you a point for the other flag you added. ★

Girls Room 36

You had us at the doormat. But who are you? It will be difficult to win the competition if we don't know who to award. Every nook and cranny was decorated. Camp paraphernalia makes excellent decor. Candy bribes are always noticed and welcome. The beds were off a little this time. We definitely couldn't bounce a quarter off them. ★

Girls Room 37

Quotes from speakers are very helpful to your score. We had streamers, flags, a horse thingy, bribes. The cabin was neat and orderly. You still have no cabin name. Overall, ok. You definitely improved. Keep up the good work. Let's see more tomorrow. Articles in the camp paper can help you catch up. ★
