THE WAR ON FARMERS & RANCHERS

FOLDING ★ THE ★ FLAG

To properly fold the U.S. Flag, follow these steps:

1. Two people face each other, each holding one end of the flag. Stretch it horizontally at waist height and fold in half lengthwise.
2. Fold the flag in half lengthwise again; the union (blue field) should be on the outside with edges held together.
3. One person holds the flag by the union while the other starts at the opposite end by making a triangular fold.
4. Continue to fold in triangles until the flag resembles a cocked hat with only the blue field showing. ★

WHAT'S HAPPENING?

War on Farmers: Globalists are waging a war on farmers and ranchers around the world. These international elites are planning to take total control of the food supply and humanity with it.

Dutch Tyranny: In the Netherlands – the world's second largest agricultural exporter – the government is seeking to reduce nitrogen emissions by 50 percent by 2030. To achieve this, it announced draconian restrictions on the use of fertilizer, which is essential to food production. And many farmers are being ordered to drastically cull their cattle herds, by as much as 25 to 95 percent.

Other Countries Join: The governments of Canada and Ireland both announced that farmers will be forced to reduce fertilizer emissions by nearly a third by 2030. Other countries are imposing similar restrictions.

Chaos in Sri Lanka: Sri Lanka's government mandated "sustainable" farming methods, including banning commercial fertilizers and pesticides. This led to mass hunger, a collapse in food production, violent riots, and even the government overthrow.

Globalists move in: Now, the International Monetary Fund is coming to the "rescue" with a plan that will allow major foreign agri-business and Communist Chinese interests to come in and pick up farms, land and other assets on the cheap.

WHO'S BEHIND IT?

AGENDA 21: The global war on farmers goes back to the United Nations' Agenda 21, adopted at the Earth Summit in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, in June 1992. Under the guise of "sustainable development," this plan seeks totalitarian control and regimentation of the entire planet and every person on it-and this includes total regulation of food production.

AGENDA 2030: In 2015, Agenda 21 was repackaged as the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, or Agenda 2030. However, the two plans are virtually the same. Although touted as "nonbinding," Agenda 21/2030 is actually a form of "soft law." This means that government entities often choose, or are pressured, to adopt it into law, thus making it binding.

WEF: The World Economic Forum (WEF) is one of the main organizations pushing for Agenda 2030. In 2019, it signed a Strategic Partnership Framework with the United Nations. The agreement outlines "areas of cooperation to deepen institutional engagement and jointly accelerate the implementation of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development."

PUSHING TYRANNY: The WEF is also at the forefront of the global war on farmers. In 2009, it launched the New Vision for Agriculture (NVA) initiative, and the following year it released an NVA report titled Realizing a New Vision for Agriculture: A Roadmap for Stakeholders, which promoted the Agenda 21/2030 goal of total regulation of food production.

WEB OF CONNECTIONS: Many of the leaders implementing the war on farmers have close ties to the WEF. For example, the Dutch government is funding the WEF's Food Innovation Hubs initiative, and Prime Minister Mark Rutte announced at the January 2021 WEF summit that the WEF had selected the Dutch city of Wageningen to host the Initiative's Global Coordinating Secretariat. Meanwhile, Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau is a WEF Young Global Leader.

BUILD BACK BETTER: Many global leaders and influencers have adopted the catchphrase "Build Back Better," which came out of the United Nations and the World Economic Forum. This mantra is part of the WEPs push for a "Great Reset" of the entire planet politically, economically, socially, biologically, morally, and spiritually. A big part of that reset is centralizing political control over food systems.

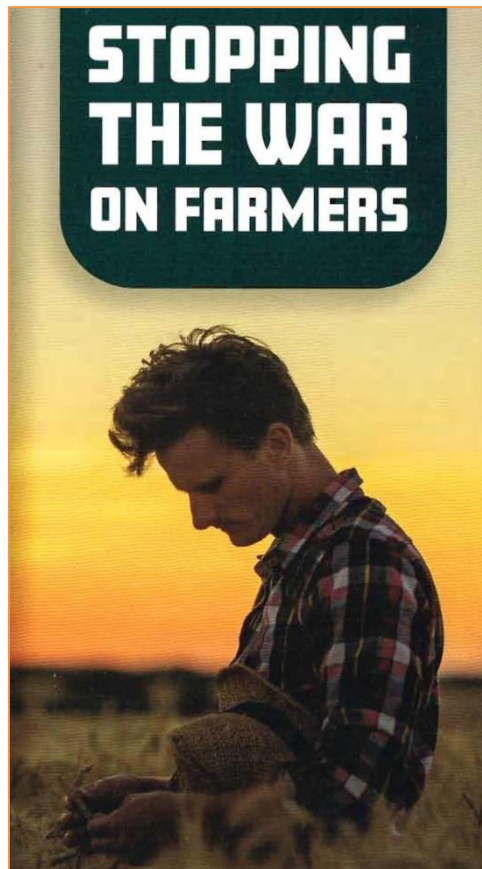

"Fertilizer shortages are real now. As a result, we're working with countries to think about natural solutions like manure and compost, and this may hasten transitions.... Never let a crisis go to waste."

-USAID Administrator Samantha Power

WHAT ABOUT THE UNITED STATES?

Even here at home, the Deep State and globalist elites are waging the war on farmers and ranchers. Here are several ways they are doing this:

- Pursuing a "net zero" emissions goal for U.S. agriculture by 2050.

- Rejoining the unconstitutional United Nations Paris Climate Agreement, which will devastate farmers and ranchers.
- Joining the Global Methane Pledge, to dramatically reduce methane emissions. This would lead to many of the same restrictions being implemented in the Netherlands and other nations.
- Allowing foreign interests and wealthy elites to buy vast amounts of farmland; for example, Bill Gates is the biggest private owner of farmland in the U.S.
- Attacking property rights using eminent domain to build "carbon-capture pipelines" and the Environmental Protection Agency's draconian "Waters of the United States" regulations.
- Using the Securities and Exchange Commission's proposed rule to force farmers and ranchers to track all their "emissions" if they do business with a public company. ★

Fighting Carbon-capture Pipelines: Stopping Environmental Idiocracy

I have just returned from barnstorming the state of Iowa. I was there to rally the citizens and warn them that their property rights are in jeopardy.

In Iowa, along with North and South Dakota, Minnesota, and Nebraska, the push is on to capture carbon dioxide (CO2) and bury it in the ground. The excuse is to protect the Earth from climate change!

In my years of fighting the lies and insane policies of the radical environmental movement, this is undoubtedly their dumbest plan. It's also one of the most dangerous that we have ever faced.

The drive to build these destructive, useless pipelines is ludicrous. Private companies would have no reason to build them if not for the big bucks they're getting from Biden's $1.2 trillion "infrastructure" bill in support of his "Build Back Better" agenda.

The Scheme

Thousands of acres of privately owned, food-producing Midwest Corn Belt farmland are targeted for a new 1,300-mile-long pipeline. It's not a pipeline to bring us desperately needed fuel oil, but to capture carbon dioxide and transport it underground!

Two private companies are pushing these CO2 pipelines — Summit Carbon Solutions and Navigator CO2 Ventures. They have already sent out letters explaining the project to farmers across the above-named states. One example reads:

Navigator is proposing to build a large-scale carbon capture pipeline system spanning more than 1,300 miles across five states in the Midwest. The pipeline system ... will capture carbon dioxide (CO2) emissions from local facilities before these emissions reach the atmosphere, and transport the CO2 safely via pipeline to a permanent and secure underground sequestration site in Illinois.

The letter goes on to explain that “the pipeline will materially reduce the participant’s carbon footprint and further the global goal of carbon neutrality.”

These are private companies, not public utilities. Yet their letter to property owners also contains this threat:

We intend to file a petition with the Iowa Utilities Board for permission to build the pipeline.... Our goal is to reach voluntary agreements with all landowners along the Project route, though if we are unable to do so, we may need to request the right of eminent domain (condemnation) from the Board.

The message is clear to property owners: Be real nice and give up your land voluntarily, or we will just take it!

This pipeline project is part of the great plot I’ve been warning about for more than 30 years. The same scheme is repeated in Agenda 21, Agenda 2030, the Green New Deal, and now the Great Reset. President George H. W. Bush signed us into Agenda 21 at the United Nations Earth Summit in Rio de Janeiro in 1992. In the subsequent book Agenda 21: The Earth Summit Strategy to Save Our Planet, its radical promoters wrote that “effective execution of Agenda 21 will require a profound reorientation of all human society, unlike anything the world has ever experienced.”

America’s farmers are now on the front lines of the ground war to force that reorganization. Pipeline planners won’t build along the edges of farmland; the pipeline will drive right through the middle, rendering much of the property useless. As their land is confiscated, farmers won’t be allowed to grow food. Crops wouldn’t grow anyway, because the first step to installing pipelines is ripping up topsoil.

If they sign easements to voluntarily give up their land, farmers are promised that they will be paid, in the next year, 80 percent of what crop production would have garnered. Sixty percent is promised for the second year, and 40 percent for the third year. Little is mentioned regarding compensation after that.

As less farmland is available, the Great Reset scheme is to grow most of our food inside factories, providing only synthetic substitutes such as the fake meat currently on the market. It’s interesting to note that Bill Gates is right in the middle of this scheme. He’s been busy buying up millions of acres of farmland, and he’s one of the biggest promoters of synthetic beef.

The Hoax

The climate-change threat is a complete hoax, designed to create fear and get you to voluntarily give up your liberties. There is no scientific evidence whatsoever to back up the claims of catastrophic man-made global warming.

Yet the alleged goal of eco-radicals is to reduce mankind’s “carbon footprint.” That is the drive behind carbon-capture pipelines as well as the push to claim thousands more acres for wind and solar farms. These latter will supposedly replace oil and gas power plants, facilities that take up only a few acres each.

The manufacture, operation, and maintenance of wind and solar require huge amounts of resources: oil, copper, iron ore, limestone, steel, lithium, aluminum, graphite, cobalt, silicon, nickel, chromium, zinc, and other rare earth metals. A World Bank study published in 2017 admitted that “clean energy” technology is “significantly more material intensive” than hydrocarbon energy sources, and that estimate didn’t even consider farmland destruction.

Wind and solar farms destroy the environment by cluttering formerly scenic views, and setting up thousands of acres for potential dust-bowl conditions. Turbines kill birds; nothing grows under solar panels. Valuable habitat is destroyed.

So is farmland. Today, the same forces behind wind and solar schemes push carbon capture. The most important food-producing farmland in the nation is about to be confiscated for the supposed cause of environmental protection. What it will produce is environmental degradation and food shortages.

And there is this shocking news: Carbon-capture pipelines are proven to be major health hazards to people living close to them. A pipeline in Mississippi ruptured near the small town of Satartia. A green cloud descended over the town, blocking oxygen and creating a foul smell. Dozens of people became disoriented, nauseated, and dazed. Many collapsed in their homes. First responders had no idea how to deal with it. Even car engines shut off, because they also need oxygen to run. Months later, people are still dealing with mental foggiess and other health problems.

The Victory

Opposition across Iowa and other affected states is strong. Public meetings designed to sell the idea are filled with citizens and property owners who oppose the scheme. Many county supervisor boards have written letters to the Iowa Utilities Board (IUB) to express opposition.

However, when it comes to stopping the pipeline altogether, their commitment is weak. Some county officials have already surrendered to this tyranny, saying, “There’s not much we can do. It looks like it’s just going to happen.” One newspaper reported that “local governments have no legal power to stop carbon dioxide pipelines.”

They are wrong!

That’s why, with the help of John Birch Society chapter leaders, I went to Iowa and barnstormed the state. The good news is that no land has yet been taken. Pipelines are still in the planning stage. I provided a series of plans on how citizens can organize and make this a very public issue. They don’t have to just accept it! Plus, I gave elected officials a full game plan for fighting this in local and state government.

First, citizens and their elected representatives must understand that these companies behind the pipeline are private. They don’t have the power to enforce eminent domain. They must have government force behind them. That’s why they are looking to the Iowa Utilities Board as their ace to take the land. I have a plan to stop that.

Speaking directly to county supervisors, I didn’t pull any punches. Frankly, I was appalled that most of the county boards across the state have taken such a weak stand against the pipeline.

One county had written to the Iowa Utilities Board, pleading with them not to invoke eminent domain. The letter ended: “we respectfully ask that you refrain from utilizing eminent domain in your pursuits.”

I read that line to them in my public meeting and asked, “This is how you represent your people? By pleading? Shameful!”

“You are the body directly elected by the people to protect their rights,” I told them.

“You must take direct action to do that!”

Here’s how: First, stop taking the coward’s way out by hiding behind an unelected, appointed board that doesn’t represent the people.

Second, prepare solid legislation to protect the property rights of those in the path of the pipeline. Quite simply, declare your county protected from the pipeline.

Third, reach out to other county boards. Encourage them to take the same action in their counties. Then, counties can lock arms and stand firm. They will create an impenetrable wall in their state, which private companies and appointed boards cannot pierce.

One more piece to the puzzle will end the threat and assure victory. Strongly constitutional sheriffs will enforce property-rights legislation and arrest any representatives of these companies that come on private land to map it and pressure landowners.

To assure these tactics are used, dedicated local citizens must demand that their elected representatives act. Then the citizens must organize to support them. Working together in that way, community by community, will result in this outrageous carbon-capture pipeline never being built!

I must tell you, the response from my audiences was powerful. As I write this, they are now working to build the effective organization I recommended. Citizens must do the work to convince their county boards of supervisors to act. I am now getting reports from citizen leaders that this is starting to happen. Opposition is building.

In fact, after I returned home, I was thrilled to receive a report that two counties in South Dakota (Brown and Spink) have just passed moratoriums blocking any permits or construction on the pipeline!

This is what we can accomplish when we take a strong stand and refuse to buckle under.★

ROOT BEER aka Small Beer

Our Junior Campers are learning that the water quality for our early colonists was quite a concern. To prevent disease amongst the children, different recipes were developed. Amongst them were the root drinks that actually leveraged the fermentation process and the alcohol helped purify the water. Birch, Sarsaparilla and ginger root and bark were combined with herbs and yeast and allowed to ferment. This process killed off bad bacteria and rendered a safer drink. Today we know a few of these recipes such as Birch Beer, Root Beer and Ginger Ale, but we render them alcohol free.

Mrs. Kathy Mickle has lead our 9-11 year olds in making their own root beer. She has obtained root beer extract from Baldwin & Sons in West Stockbridge, MA. The extract contains vanilla, carmel, oil of anise, oil of wintergreen, sassafras oil and glycerine.

Ingredients

- ★ ½ cup of warm water
- ★ 1 teaspoon of dry yeast
- ★ 2 cups of sugar
- ★ 5 teaspoons of extract
- ★ Hot water

Directions

Add the yeast to the warm water and stir until the yeast dissolves. Place the yeast water into a gallon jug and add the sugar and extract. Carefully pour hot water into the jug until full. Cap the jug and shake well. Set the jug in the sun for several hours. As the jug begins to swell, release the cap and replace. This will allow the air from the fermentation to escape. Chill the jugs in the refrigerator over night. Drink and enjoy.

Mrs. Mickel has informed us that she intends to make enough of her brew to share with some of the teen campers and adults. Keep an eye out tomorrow and maybe you can be among the lucky ones to sample the drink! Be sure to share your opinion with the newspaper as we would like to share your experience in these pages.★

Junior campers are also making tie dye shirts today in Mrs. Mickle’s class. The goal is to have them ready to wear for Thursday’s parade.

The first campfire of Camp Constitution 2023 was first rate. Mrs. Heath had challenged the campers last year to memorize "Rinderella" and promised $20 to anyone who could accomplish it. Colette Chu collected the prize money this year by reciting it by memory. Mrs. White taught the camp Mrs. Murphy's Chowder. Mr. Josh Villeniskis played a concerto by Vivaldi on the violin. Bene Godfrey sang and played guitar to "The Garden". Rebekah Krutov sang while playing "America" on her guitar. David Krutov and his ahh sordid friends performed the longest duck skit in recorded history. Gus Kalis et al put their own twist on the skit: "The Bubble Gum Caper". Mr. Shurtleff told another tired, worn-out, recycled joke. He even had the audacity to warn those that had heard it before to "pretend to laugh". All joined in to perform "Bind Us Together" complete with hand gestures. Taps was sung to close out the night, accompanied by Franklin Soon on the Trumpet. ★
