| William C. Engle built his own home in 1932 and has lived there ever since with his wife Anna. The house is virtually intact with the exception of the enclosure of the back porch on the south facade in 1980, and the replacement of a few windows over the years.1995: One contributing building.  |  |  |                              |   |  |  |   |  |

SIGNIFICANCE This property is significant under National Register criterion A, for its association with agricultural land use patterns first established during the period of early settlement in the 1850s. This property is also significant under National Register criterion C, because it embodies the distinctive characteristics of architectural expressions and methods of construction that represent the period of community stabilization and economic slowdown (evidenced by simpler forms lacking ornamentation) and the theme of recreation and tourism (evidenced by structures built with natural materials set in scenic locations), from 1911 until 1945. It retains integrity of location, setting, materials, design, workmanship, feeling and association.
