Conformation is one of the oldest dog sports. While dogs may look like they are in a beauty pageant, they are not. They are being compared to their written breed standard. The dog that looks closest to the breed standard will be chosen as the winner. Dogs start competing against their same breed and if they win, they move on to compete against dogs in their group, and then on to Best in Show!
At the 144th Westminster Kennel Club Dog Show in February, Siba, a black Standard Poodle stole the show. She competed against 2600 other dogs to earn her crown. Winning at the Westminster Kennel Club show is every dog handler's dream. Dogs that win go on to become instant celebrities with many TV appearances and interviews.

MEET THE 7 GROUPS

The AKC organizes each of the recognized breeds into different groups. Hound, Herding, Sporting, Terrier, Toy, Working and Non-Sporting. Each group represents a different function and dogs are grouped depending on what they were originally bred to do. Let’s meet the 7 groups!

The Sporting Group was first bred to work closely with hunters to find and retrieve birds. There are four basic types of Sporting dogs; spaniels, pointers, retrievers and setters. They are highly active and great family dogs!

The Terrier Group is made up of spunky little dogs who were bred to hunt rats and other small animals. They are known for their feisty personalities and like to be the center of attention.

The Working Group is made up of some of the largest dogs. They are intelligent, strong, watchful, and alert. Bred to help man, they excel at jobs such as guarding property, pulling sleds and performing water rescues.

NON-SPORTING

The Non-Sporting Group dogs are made up of many different breeds with varying sizes, coats, personalities and overall appearance. They come from a wide variety of backgrounds, and were bred for different jobs and functions.

HERDING

The Herding Group is made up of dogs that were bred to herd livestock and help on the farm. They are highly active, and very smart. They are great family dogs and sometimes will herd their human families!

TOYS

Dogs in the Toy group might be short on size, but they are definitely not short on personality! Breeds in the Toy group are affectionate, and were bred to be companions for kings and queens long ago.
The Hound Group is a group of dogs that were bred to hunt. Some hounds use their sense of smell to hunt, while others use their sight. They are grouped into what AKC calls Sight hounds and Scent hounds. They are smart, athletic and very loyal.

Now that you have met all the different groups, which do you think would be best for your family? Why?

Ask yourself....

Is my family active?
Who will be in charge of the dog's care?
Do you live in an apartment or house?

Find your Match!

Here’s how this activity works: Each child gets a puzzle piece.

- Once students are settled in, instruct them to walk around the room to each classmate to see if their puzzle piece fits with another student’s piece.
- As they go from student to student, they must introduce themselves and tell one important fact about themselves.
- At the end of the activity each “match” must introduce one another and tell the class about the facts that they have learned.

Here’s how this activity works for virtual learning:

- Each child receives instructions from their teacher and makes their own puzzle piece.
- Teacher leads activity via video chat and asks each student to hold up their puzzle piece one by one.
- When a student sees their "match" hold up their piece they each take turns sharing one fact about themselves.
- At the end of the activity each “match” must introduce one another and tell the class about the facts that they have learned.
AKC Canine Clubs are an after school program designed for students in grades K-8. AKC Canine Clubs can be hosted by a teacher or group leader in any school or youth organization. The goal of this club is for children to learn about dogs! We have provided all of the resources and lesson plans needed to make this a fun and educational program. Find out more here: https://www.akc.org/public-education/akc-canine-club/
