

There's no debate — here's how to throw a winning election night party

BY DEBBIE CARLSON AND ANDREEA CIULAC
Chicago Tribune

BED BATH & BEYOND

These bamboo serving boards combine state pride and a love for snacks, so you can watch the election results with a warm heart and a full belly. Bamboo state serving boards, $14.99-$19.99, Bed Bath & Beyond stores and www.bedbathandbeyond.com.

PIER 1 IMPORTS

These hand-painted patriotic wine glasses will cheer you up no matter who wins. Election party painted wine glasses, $9.95, www.pier1.com.

ZAZZLE

Whether you're looking to show your support for a certain party or you just want a cute tray to hold your famous bacon bites, this tray fits the bill. Houndstooth elephant serving tray, $47.95, www.zazzle.com.

BRIAN JOHNSON

We the people are suddenly very thirsty. Constitution of the United States of America rocks glass, $13, at theuncommongreen.com

Democratic donkey and Republican elephant cookie cutters help to keep the debate going. $3.99 each, www.annclarkcookiecutters.com.

ANN CLARK

A night like this calls for Prada's brilliant, red ankle-strap platform sandals. You'll be shining brighter than the next American president. $820, select Barneys New York stores and www.barneys.com.

BARNEYS

Toast the night with this "Cool Abraham Lincoln" glass, $12.95, www.cafepress.com.

CAFE PRESS

BARNEYS

Bring your inner Dem to election night with this cobalt "neutral" emoji wool beanie from Acne Studios, $120, www.barneys.com.

Debbie Carlson is a freelance writer.