Important information about this paint

- The paint included is a specially formulated non-toxic, acrylic paint that dries permanently on most surfaces, so be careful.
- Cover your work surface with newspaper. Have a cup of water and paper towels handy.
- Wear a smock or old clothes. This paint may stain. Clean up any spills immediately with soap and water.
- Paint can settle and separate over time. Mix each color thoroughly before you begin painting. If the paint seems too thick, stir in a drop or two of water.
- Before changing colors, rinse and dry your brush thoroughly.

Painting your rocks

Rocks come in all shapes and sizes. Look closely at your rock –what do you see? You could turn a very round rock into a bear’s head, a sunflower or a soccer ball. Turn a triangular shaped rock into a bird, fish or a siamese cat. There is no right or wrong way to paint your rocks, just be creative and have fun.

We’ve given you the basic primary colors to work with, but don’t be afraid to mix up your own new colors. You can use a foam tray or a piece of foil for mixing.

Helpful Hint: If you’re using an especially dark rock, it may be helpful to paint the rock white, let it dry, and then paint another color on top. This will keep your colors looking bright.

Once your paint is completely dry, add some personality to your pets using the felt shapes, fur and wiggly eyes.

The black puffy outline paint can be used to make spots on a ladybug, patterns on a turtle shell, stripes on a zebra, eyes on an insect, or any details you can dream up.

Although most rocks live outside, these pebble pets should be kept safe indoors to preserve your artwork.
