

Carrie Owens Quoted on New Customs Rules

August 10, 2026

Partner Carrie Owens was quoted by National Post, in their article, "Trump's New U.S. Customs Rules Could Upend Canadian Exports." The article covers a recent executive order that will heighten U.S. customs enforcement in order to crack down on trade fraud and shell importers that evade duties.

"The purpose of this is good ... It's to stop illicit trade," Carrie explains.

The article continues to describe the stricter entry requirements for foreign importers of record, noting that "the order could fundamentally change how many legitimate companies import into the United States."

"The tariffs are a cost of doing business ... Potentially, the actions that are happening could disrupt the flow of goods," Carrie said.

Read the full article here.