

Conflict Prevention & Resolution (CPR) Institute Selects Partner Robert L. Haig as Executive Advisory Committee Member

November 11, 2009

Partner Robert L. Haig has been chosen by the International Institute for Conflict Prevention & Resolution (CPR Institute) to serve a four year term as a member of the CPR Executive Advisory Committee. This Committee plays a key role in guiding the CPR Institute's substantive programs. The Executive Committee members provide judgment and strategy regarding program directions and operation, and advise the CPR Institute's other committees and practice area initiatives.

Founded in 1979, the CPR Institute is a nonprofit organization that promotes excellence and innovation in commercial dispute resolution. CPR serves as a primary multinational resource for avoidance, management and resolution of business-related disputes.
