Partner Mark Austrian authored the article, “Electronic Case Management in the Digital World,” published in Data Management and Security. Mark fully explains the advantages and challenges of organizing and presenting information in the post-discovery phases of the trial through electronic case management (ECM), an issues- driven system that takes advantage of our world as it changes from a paper-based world to an electronics-based one. This article is a great practitioners tool illustrating how the use of electronic case management, using basic computer hardware and software, can work to counsel’s advantage in three important litigation areas: client and trial team communication; pretrial organization; and trial organization and presentation.
