About

A former New Jersey deputy attorney general, Elliott Siebers now helps clients with privacy and information security, advertising technology, and other consumer protection matters. He handles breach preparedness and response, compliance with U.S. federal and state laws, and regulatory investigations by the FTC and State AGs.

In his most recent role, Elliott served as Section Chief of the Data Privacy and Cybersecurity Section, overseeing a team of attorneys that handled multi-state and New Jersey-initiated investigations into violations of consumer protection law, including the New Jersey Consumer Fraud Act, Identity Theft Prevention Act, HIPAA, and COPPA.
