On December 6, 2023, Google introduced its new Gemini AI model with a video that showcased some of its capabilities. The video demonstrated how Gemini could identify hand-drawn images, make sense of gestures, create games, make connections between objects, identify a sleight-of-hand trick, and perform other impressive tasks. Most people who watched the video were left in awe, but some that dug a little deeper felt that Google had performed a sleight-of-hand trick on them.
