About

With more than three decades of immersive industry experience, Hank Kelly is acutely aware of the unique legal, regulatory, and business challenges his telecommunications, energy, and public utility clients face.

Hank leverages his understanding of his clients' pressures and priorities and his equally in-depth grasp of the complex legal landscape in which they conduct business to provide frank, practical compliance counsel, and determined, strategic advocacy in contested matters.

Working closely with public and private companies ranging in size from start-ups to Fortune 100 businesses, Hank delivers guidance designed to identify, address, and resolve regulatory concerns arising from day-to-day operations, long-term strategic initiatives, business transactions, mergers, and acquisitions. Hank is personally committed to working with each client to enhance asset value, solidify return on investment, and protect market share.

Appreciated for his constancy, levelheadedness, honesty, and straightforward approach to communication both inside and outside of court, Hank is dedicated to presenting information and facts in an easily understood and effectual way.

Hank knows from experience that the drivers of competitive advantage vary from business to business. Consequently, he strives to identify and leverage each client's opportunities for growth while creating a cost-effective strategy that achieves commercial goals.

As the telecom and energy industries constantly change, Hank has proven highly effective in navigating the emerging terrain by synthesizing even the most outdated laws and regulations and applying them to cutting-edge technologies and progressive business models.

In his dispute resolution, traditional litigation, and public agency advocacy practice, Hank draws upon his practical know-how in dealing with the nuances and complexity of telecom and energy regulations.

Hank has successfully advocated his clients' positions in litigation claims and other matters involving intellectual property, class action defense, state and federal preemption, and actions to enforce state and federal telecom and energy laws. Hank's advocacy and actual trial experience is notable; he has successfully argued cases before more than 10 state public service commissions and separately litigated enforcement actions in more than 14 federal court jurisdictions.

Named a Chicago Communications “Lawyer of the Year” by Best Lawyers Magazine, Hank is also ranked as a Tier 1 attorney in Communications by Chambers USA: America’s Leading Lawyers for Business; listed among The Best Lawyers in America® in Communications Law; included in the US Legal 500 in the Telecoms and Broadcast—Regulatory section; selected as a Leading Lawyer in Illinois by Crain’s Chicago Business; and listed among Illinois Super Lawyers.

Hank has served as general counsel to the Illinois Power Agency, which oversees competitive electricity procurement by Illinois’ largest electricity distributors and monitors renewable energy portfolio procurement and demand response measures by the state’s electricity utilities. Throughout his tenure at the agency, Hank was involved in formulating, executing, and enforcing energy policy. As a result, he delivers the requisite experience and viewpoint needed to craft viable and functional solutions for even the most difficult challenges.
