

Interview with David Vladeck, Director, FTC Bureau of Consumer Protection

April 16, 2010

The American Bar Association's The Antitrust Source published an article, "Interview with David Vladeck, Director, FTC Bureau of Consumer Protection." The in-depth interview examines Mr. Vladeck's career as a litigator and professor and how his accomplishments and challenges are shaping his tenure at the Federal Trade Commission. The interview probes Mr. Vladeck's views on topics including the commercial speech doctrine, social media, alternative remedies for data breaches, and a proposed Consumer Financial Protection Agency, among other subjects.

Click here to read a PDF of the article.