July 24, 2025

India Business Law Journal (IBLJ) has named Kelley Drye among the top foreign law firms for India-related work in the publication's 19th annual report on law firms operating in the region.

The report highlights Kelley Drye as a "Significant Player" in the market and a firm that "enjoyed another successful year, opening close to 90 new matters with an India angle in 2024." The report noted how many of the firm's technology company clients continued to ramp up their onshore presence in the U.S. over the past year, acquiring several targets there.

In March, Kelley Drye Partner Deepak Nambiar, chair of both the firm's India Practice Group and its Technology Transactions & Sourcing Group, was also named to IBLJ's 2025 A-List, comprised of the top India-focused lawyers at international law firms.

The findings of IBLJ's report are based on extensive consultations with India-focused corporate counsel worldwide and partners at Indian law firms. These were further reinforced by submissions received from a significant number of international law firms, as well as interviews and research conducted by the IBLJ editorial team.
