

Kelley Green Law Blog Launches to Cover Chemical Regulation

June 8, 2018

Joe Green, special counsel in Kelley Drye's Environmental, Health and Safety practice, launched www.KelleyGreenLawBlog.com to provide insight and analysis on the latest chemical regulatory developments and trends. The blog will address federal, state and international regulations with a particular emphasis on those regulations that effect consumer and industrial products and materials.

The Kelley Green Law Blog will highlight issues relevant to businesses ranging from major manufacturers to consumer goods distributors and retailers. The blog will examine topics like the implementation of the amended Toxic Substances Control Act, California Proposition 65, antimicrobial product requirements, and developments under the European Union REACH, CLP, and RoHS programs.

For more information, visit www.KelleyGreenLawBlog.com.