

Law360 Highlights New Additions Kate Black and Mason Fitch

January 27, 2026

Law360 featured Partner Kate Black and Special Counsel Mason Fitch as new additions to the Kelley Drye Privacy and Information Security practice. Kate was the first head of privacy and data protection at 23andMe, and has joined the firm's San Francisco and Los Angeles offices, where her practice covers the intersection of privacy, artificial intelligence and health technology. Mason has joined the Houston office, where he will work on matters related to privacy and artificial intelligence.

"Being part of a team with such a robust platform allows me to provide clients with a full spectrum of resources and to collaborate with colleagues who are at the forefront of developments in privacy, regulatory enforcement and defense, and litigation," said Kate.

"My work in healthcare often intersects with advertising tech, so I'm excited to have a broader advertising group to partner with in offering comprehensive advice to clients," Mason said.

"Ultimately, it was the right place to grow my practice among an established privacy powerhouse."
