

Managing Your Supply Chain in the Post 'Consumptive Demand' Era

Kelley Drye Seminar

Firm Event

March 22 – May 10, 2016 from 10:00 am to 12:00 pm (EDT)

New York

Washington, DC

New York, NY

An arcane provision in U.S. Customs law, known as the "consumptive demand exception," allowed products and commodities made with forced labor to be imported in cases where production in the U.S. did not meet "consumptive demand." Recent changes in the statute have brought an end to this provision. What does this mean for your supply chain?

Please join us for a meetings on March 22nd in Washington, DC and May 10th, in New York, with Kenneth Kennedy, Senior Policy Advisor for Forced Labor Programs at the Department of Homeland Security/Immigration and Customs Enforcement (DHS/ICE) for a discussion about the repeal of the consumptive demand exemption, what the investigations process at CBP and ICE may look like, and what steps companies should take to increase supply chain transparency and traceability.

Related Services

Customs

International Trade

Government Relations and Public Policy