

New Privacy Perspectives Episode: State AI Legislation — What's Moving and What It Means

Alexander I. Schneider, Laura Riposo VanDruff, Salim Rashid,
Joseph Cahill

May 17, 2026

In this episode of Privacy Perspectives, Alex Schneider is joined by Laura Riposo VanDruff, Salim Rashid, and Joseph Cahill for a focused discussion on what has become one of the most active state legislative seasons for AI regulation. The group maps the landscape across five emerging categories of AI bills — companion chatbot disclosures, deepfake and watermarking requirements, frontier model transparency obligations, algorithmic discrimination rules, and AI liability frameworks — and examines what the pace of activity means for companies trying to build durable compliance programs. They also talk about Colorado's recently passed SB 189, which is effectively a repeal and replacement of the original Colorado AI Act, what changed, what was removed, and the associated compliance planning challenges.

One Feed, Multiple Formats

Privacy Perspectives episodes appear on the same Ad Law Access feed hosted by Simone Roach, so if you're already subscribed, you'll get these automatically. If not, subscribe now on your preferred podcast platform.

We've got more podcast conversations and formats planned for 2026—one subscription gets you everything. Find the episode and more here.