About

Chair of Kelley Drye, Paul Rosenthal is one of the most respected international trade and government relations lawyers in the United States, advancing his clients' interests in Washington, D.C., across the country, and around the globe.

Paul's determined advocacy and strategic advice—along with his dedication, intellect, and well-placed sense of humor—have formed the foundation of more than four decades of client relationships and an enviable record of success.

Paul's clients often face challenges involving a mix of legal, economic, policy, political, and reputational concerns, and he is known for developing holistic, multi-dimensional approaches that resolve disputes, advance negotiations, and influence policymaking.

Paul regularly appears before U.S. trade agencies, where clients from a wide range of industries, including manufacturing, technology, chemicals, food, agriculture, and healthcare, trust him to win their most significant disputes. Indeed, Paul has appeared and succeeded before all U.S. trade agencies and reviewing courts and has participated in hundreds of agency and court proceedings.

He has represented clients in disputes involving the World Trade Organization (WTO) and the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA), as well as in the development of the United States-Mexico-Canada Agreement (USMCA) and other multilateral and bilateral negotiations.

In his government relations practice, Paul helps clients advance their objectives before Congress and the Executive Branch. Paul acts as general counsel or Washington counsel to several international and national trade associations and served as counsel to the U.S. Senate Committee on Governmental Affairs for more than five years.

Regularly recognized by his peers for his professional excellence and success, Paul is described as having a "thoroughly informed style of advocacy—he's highly creative and in person he's a superb advocate in his demeanor and approach." Clients tell Chambers USA: America's Leading Lawyers for Business that Paul is "highly knowledgeable" and "an incredible asset" who "gives us confidence during the hearings."

Paul also holds prominent rankings in Chambers Global, Washingtonian magazine, Legal 500 US, The Best Lawyers in America®, Legal Times, International Who's Who in Trade & Customs Lawyers, Super

Lawyers, and Lawdragon. He was selected for inclusion among the elite Band 1 lawyers listed in Chambers for International Trade and, according to a market source, is “probably the best of the petitioner lawyers” he knows.

In addition to serving as chair of the firm, Paul is also a member of the firm’s Executive Committee and previously served as managing partner of the Washington, D.C., office and co-chair of the Government Relations and Public Policy practice group.

Paul maintains an active pro bono practice and serves as chair of the advisory board of the University of Iowa Institute for Vision Research and the advisory board of the Robert T. Matsui Center, Institute of Governmental Studies, University of California, Berkeley.
