About

Paul Doyle has handled virtually every kind of commercial case, both large and small, and has been involved in several of the most important litigations in the last fifty years. His practice focused on international and domestic commercial litigation, including fraud, contract, banking, antitrust, securities, health care, class action and product liability matters. He has resolved disputes valued into the hundreds of millions of dollars, and has extensive experience litigating and favorably settling domestic litigation, as well as litigation involving European, Asian and South American companies.

Paul worked as a law clerk in the Superior Court of Massachusetts from 1973–1974. He was in the U.S. Army from 1968–1970, and served as a sergeant with the Fourth Infantry Division in Vietnam.

He is currently a life partner in the firm.
