

Paul Rosenthal Discusses Trade Policy with USA Today

October 4, 2006

In a USA Today article about U.S. trade relations with Asia, Paul Rosenthal, Managing Partner of the firm's Washington, DC office, discussed the future of trade agreements in the new Democratic Congress. Mr. Rosenthal predicted that, as the majority party, Democrats would more closely scrutinize bilateral and multilateral free trade agreements to ensure that they meet international environmental and labor standards.
