

Privacy By Design, Choice and Transparency: What a New Framework Will Mean for Business and Technology

Kelley Drye Seminar

Firm Event

January 20, 2011 from 3:00 pm to 5:30 pm (EST)

Washington, DC

Washington, DC

Live and via teleconference, Kelley Drye & Warren LLP presents its 3rd annual privacy law seminar.

As businesses strive to innovate and evolve using new technologies, federal agencies including the FTC and FCC, the Congress, and state regulators are increasing scrutiny on privacy practices in an effort to protect consumers.

On the heels of the FTC's proposed new framework for protecting consumer privacy, Kelley Drye gathers government leaders from key federal agencies and policy experts for a discussion about how new privacy regulations and best practices, pending privacy and data security legislation, and enforcement trends are impacting U.S. companies ranging from retailers to telecommunications and technology companies.
