About

Rory Mahon is an associate in the New York office.

Prior to joining the firm, Rory advocated for tenants in Washington, D.C.'s housing court, gained valuable experience at the Federal Trade Commission, served as a judicial intern for the Honorable Katherine Wiedmann in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia, and acted as the Co-Director of the Georgetown Law trial advocacy team.

Experience

Pro Bono

Served as trial counsel for a domestic violence survivor in defending against claims of malicious prosecution and abuse of process brought by her former spouse in federal court in the Eastern District of New York. After the client had represented herself for eight years, Kelley Drye took on the matter pro bono and immediately prepared the case for trial on an expedited schedule. The team managed all aspects of a four-day jury trial, effectively countering emotionally charged allegations and demonstrating significant inconsistencies in plaintiff's testimony, and ultimately securing a unanimous jury verdict in the client's favor.
