

Rust Omni Bankruptcy Today Includes Special Counsel Benjamin Feder's Recent Blog Post Entitled "Energy Future Holdings – Another Major Success for Chapter 11 Mediation?"

September 7, 2015

Special counsel Benjamin D. Feder's blog post, "Energy Future Holdings – Another Major Success for Chapter 11 Mediation?" was included in Rust Omni Bankruptcy Today's newsletter, which provides access to recent significant chapter 11 case filings, relevant restructuring news and samples of current distressed company profiles. Originally published in Kelley Drye's Bankruptcy Law Insights blog, the post discusses chapter 11 mediation in complex cases that has evolved into a multi-party undertaking involving claimants from all levels of a debtor's capital structure, with the ambitious goal of resolving the entire case through a consensual plan of reorganization. Specifically, Mr. Feder outlines how mediation could possibly lead to an exit for Energy Future Holdings Corp.'s chapter 11 case, in which a consensual plan of reorganization could be confirmed by the end of 2015.

To read the full blog post, please click here.