Partner Bob Haig authored a book review of “Counsel, the Courtroom Is Open” by Mark C. Zauderer for the New York Law Journal. The review offers insight into Zauderer’s career as a prominent trial and appellate lawyer, highlighting how he blends personal experiences with lessons from decades of high-stakes litigation and public service.

Bob explores Zauderer’s path from launching a litigation boutique to handling complex, high-profile matters and contributing to key judicial reforms, including improvements to New York’s court system and Commercial Division.

“More than the usual lawyer’s memoir, the book places a distinguished legal career in the broader context of the personal experiences that shaped it.”

Bob joins many other prominent legal figures in recommending Zauderer’s book “not only to lawyers, but for anyone pursuing success in an entrepreneurial profession”.
