

Webinar Replay: A Readout Of The California Privacy Protection Agency's Draft Proposed CPRA Regulations

June 15, 2022

The spotlights of the consumer privacy world are once again on California after the new California Privacy Protection Agency made a surprise Friday night release of its draft California Privacy Rights Act (CPRA) regulations on May 27, 2022.

In this webinar in association with Mondaq, Kelley Drye provided observations on the proposed regulations, including which would pose the biggest challenge for businesses if implemented, and will offer strategies to plan efficiently for compliance in the face of these proposals.

Click here to view the webinar recording and click here for the presentation slides.

Join us for our next webinar, State Attorneys General 102, on June 30. Register here.

Find our state privacy law portal and more here.

Subscribe to the Ad Law Access blog to receive real-time updates on privacy and other related matters.

The Ad Law News and Views newsletter provides information on our upcoming events and a summary of recent blog posts and other publications.

Visit the Advertising and Privacy Law Resource Center for additional information, past webinars, and educational materials.

For easy access to all of our webinars, posts and podcasts, download our new Ad Law Access App.

