

“Work Made by Family”

These bags from Ecuador are created in an artisan workshop called “Ayllu Maki”, which means “Work made by family” in the indigenous language of Quechua. Lucila Cachiguango (right) and her family run the workshop and partner with local weavers in their community to combine colorful traditional textiles with leather and suede. The family is finding innovative ways to showcase the beautiful weaving traditions of Ecuador and provide opportunity for their weavers.