

Improving Lives in Kenya

With the fair income she makes as a carver with Nyabigena Soapstone Carvers Cooperative in Kenya, Theresa can send her three children to school. This is very important to her as she strongly wants a bright future for her kids. In addition, she and other artisans have been able to build new homes for their families. Houses in the area are commonly built using dirt but since working with Nyabigena, Theresa and others have been able to save funds and build homes out of concrete, which is stronger, more durable, and makes living more comfortable.
