

Teaching Others

Working for VillageWorks in Cambodia has changed Hong Sreyniet's life. Instead of remaining a farmer, which did not produce enough income to support her family, she found a job with VillageWorks and has learned the intricate processes of dyeing thread and weaving fabric. Now, she is a weaving trainer, confidently teaching the other women in the organization the same processes she mastered. She and her husband, a driver, earn enough money to support their two young daughters.
