I believe that where we are is no accident, but is God's plan for us and for the community in which we have found ourselves. How can we not, then, love our community? Having just celebrated our 31st Missions Conference, and the joy of supporting missionaries, let's turn our attention--without forgetting them--to where we are. We are surrounded by lost people. We are surrounded by people who are starving for God's love, for meaning, for hope. All this Jesus gives us and asks us to share it with our neighbors in real, tangible ways.

That's our focus this month. Will you love your neighbor in not just words and thoughts, but in action?
