Arleen Boven was admitted to St. Mary's Hospital this past week with blood clots in her lungs. She was expected to return home this weekend.

I would like to thank the congregation for the prayers and cards during the past six years that Howard dealt with various cancer and heart issues and now with his passing away. I would also like to thank Dr. Murray for his phone calls and visits and especially Dr. L. Bilkes and Jane for their many visits. Psalm 66

Jessica VandenToorn

I would like to thank everyone for all their prayers, cards, meals and words of encouragement I received since the diagnosis of my cancer and during my treatments. Our church family is such a blessing.

HIDING FROM GOD

The love of Christ constraineth the believer to live a holy life, because that truth takes away all the dread and hatred of God. When Adam was unfallen, God was everything to his soul; and everything was good and desirable to him in so far as he had to do it with God. Every vein in his body, so fearfully and wonderfully made---every leaf that rustled in the bowers of Paradise---every new sun that rose, rejoicing like a strong man to run his race---brought him every day new objects of godly thought and of admiring praise; and it was only for that reason that the earth could delight to look on them. The flowers appeared on the earth---the singing birds, and the voice of the turtle heard throughout the happy land---and the fig tree putting forth her green figs, and the vines with tender grapes giving a good smell---all these combined to bring in to him at every pore a rich and varied tribute to pleasantness. And why? Just because they brought into the soul rich and varied communications of the manifold grace of Jehovah? For just as you have seen a child on earth devoted to its earthly parent---pleased with everything when he is present, and valuing every gift just as it shows more of the tenderness of that parent's heart---so was it with that genuine child of God.

In God he lived and moved and had his being; and not more surely would the blotting out of the sun in the heavens have taken away that light which is so pleasant to the eyes, than the hiding of the face of God from him have taken away the light of his soul, and left nature a dark and desolate wilderness. But when Adam fell, the fine gold became dim---the system of his thoughts and likings were just reversed. Instead of enjoying God, in everything, and everything in God, everything now seemed hateful and disagreeable to him, just as far as it had to do with God. When man sinned, then he feared, and hated him who he feared; and fled to all sin, just to flee from him who he hated. So that, just as you have seen a child who had grievously transgressed against a loving parent, doing all he can to hide that parent from view --- hurrying from his presence, and plunging into other thoughts and occupations, just to rid his thoughts of a justly offended father---in the same way when fallen Adam heard the voice of the Lord God walking in the garden in the cool of the day---that voice which, before he sinned, was heavenly music in his ears---then did Adam and his wife hide themselves—And in the same way does every natural man run from the voice and presence of the Lord---not to hide under the thick embowering leaves of Paradise, but to bury himself in cares, and business, and pleasures, and raveling's. Any retreat is agreeable where God is not.
