3. SERVICES

- 3.1 Unless provided elsewhere, these Terms of Business for Professional Clients and Eligible Counterparties, including any Schedules attached hereto, set out the agreement between us and you (and, where applicable, your Principal(s) in addition to you) (the “Agreement”) in connection with the trading of various financial instruments with you (the “Business Services”). You understand that by dealing with us, whether directly or across a third party trading platform, or otherwise requesting or accepting our Business Services, you are agreeing to the terms of Business Services as set out in this Agreement. Throughout this Agreement, references to financial instruments shall include those as listed in MiFID II, Annex 1 Section C. In the event of any inconsistency or conflict between the Agreement and any other document, the terms of this Agreement shall prevail.
- 3.2 The Business Services shall include the following services which we may provide to you in our sole and absolute discretion and in accordance with Applicable Law:

- (a) Streaming prices to you in various financial instruments;
- (b) Dealing with you as principal in relation to various financial instruments in accordance with the terms of this Agreement, including acting as a systematic internaliser, responding to requests for quotes, or otherwise dealing with you in relation to various financial instruments where we have committed our own capital (i.e. we are “on risk”); and
- (c) Providing such other services as may be agreed by us from time to time.

Where we agree to trade certain instruments with you on the basis of the market close price (a “market close order”), we do so in a principal risk-taking capacity. The market close order will not amount to a client order for which you place reliance on us and for which we will act on your behalf. Following the receipt of a market close order we may manage our inventory in relation to the relevant instruments including to buy and sell those instruments in the ordinary course.

- 3.3 We shall not at any time provide you with investment advice or a personal recommendation, within the meaning of the Rules, unless otherwise specifically agreed in writing with you.
- 3.4 We have no obligation to accept, or to execute, or to modify, or to cancel, all or any part of an instruction that you seek to execute, modify, or cancel with us in relation to the Business Services, and may refrain from accepting, executing, modifying or cancelling any instruction at any time, except as strictly required by Applicable Law. Before acting on an instruction from you, we reserve the right to request further information from you regarding such instruction, including but not limited to requesting (i) evidence of certain documentation, or (ii) requesting evidence that you have funds and/or securities that we determine, in our discretion, to be sufficient. Without prejudice to the foregoing, and to the extent permitted by Applicable Law, we, in our sole and absolute discretion, shall be entitled to limit the number of Transactions which you (or, where applicable, your Principal(s)) may enter into with us at any one time or impose other limits, conditions or parameters on entering into Transactions and placing orders with us. Where we do so, such limits, conditions or parameters will, unless otherwise notified, be immediately effective and may include, in our sole and absolute discretion, immediately terminating any and all Transactions with you.
- 3.5 Except as otherwise prohibited by Applicable Law, any information you provide to us relating to a potential Transaction may be used by us in connection with our market making activities (as such activities relate to both your potential Transaction and transactions with other counterparties). Accordingly, we may utilise information you provide relating to a potential Transaction to, among other things, enter into transactions to establish or adjust a hedge designed to facilitate your Transaction (“pre-hedging and hedging activities”). Any trading activity we undertake to establish or adjust such pre-hedging or hedging activity will be entered into by us on a principal basis and the terms of such transactions may differ from, and impact the price of, your Transaction. In addition to the foregoing, we may use any information relating to an executed Transaction in connection with both our market making and our proprietary trading activities.
- 3.6 By executing the Client Consent Letter you give your express standing consent to your orders potentially being executed outside a trading venue (i.e. outside of a regulated market, multilateral trading facility, or organised trading facility). Where you request a quote from us outside a trading venue on the basis that we will be trading with you as principal, you acknowledge and agree that such request will constitute your express consent to us executing any consequential transaction outside a trading venue. Where we execute orders outside a trading venue the rules of any such trading venues will accordingly not apply.

- 3.7 By executing the Client Consent Letter you give your express instruction for us not to immediately make public (where we would otherwise be required to do so by Applicable Law) any limit order you place with us for shares admitted to trading on an EEA regulated market or traded on a trading venue which is not immediately executed under prevailing market conditions. We may aggregate your orders with those of other clients or our own. Such aggregation may work to your disadvantage.
- 3.8 Where you have provided regulatory consents (including express consents) under or in connection with any previous terms of business with us, you confirm and agree that those consents remain in full force and effect and that we may continue to rely on such consents (to the extent permitted by Applicable Law), unless specifically superseded by a subsequent consent given by you or you specifically revoke such consent. We shall treat any regulatory consents previously provided to Citadel Securities (Europe) Limited as also applicable to Citadel Securities GCS (Ireland) Limited (including its branches) unless you inform us otherwise, they are specifically superseded by a subsequent consent given by you, or you specifically revoke such consent.

4. CLIENT CATEGORISATION

- 4.1 In connection with the Business Services provided by us to you we have categorised you as either a Professional Client or an Eligible Counterparty for the purposes of the Rules. Your categorisation has been identified in the Client Consent Letter. Note that if you are categorised as an Eligible Counterparty, such a categorisation will only apply to the extent we conduct Eligible Counterparty Business with you. Where we do not conduct Eligible Counterparty Business with you we will treat you as a Professional Client. This is without prejudice to your right to be categorized as a Professional Client in accordance with clause 4.2.
- 4.2 If you are an Eligible Counterparty, you have the right to make a written request for a different categorisation under the Rules, indicating in such request whether additional protection is required for one or more Business Services or Transactions. If you request to be classified as a Professional Client, we may, at our discretion, treat you as a Professional Client. Where you would otherwise be a Professional Client but have elected to be an Eligible Counterparty, by executing the Client Consent Letter you give your express consent to being treated as an Eligible Counterparty and confirm that you are aware of the consequences attached to the loss of protections that otherwise would have been afforded to you as a Professional Client as set out in clause 4.8 of this Agreement.
- 4.3 If you are an Eligible Counterparty these Terms of Business are modified as follows:
- (a) we will not assess your appropriateness in connection with any Business Services and/or Transactions, including for the purposes of clause 4.6;
 - (b) we will not be bound by the duty of best execution contemplated in clause 5 and our Execution Policy will not apply to you;
 - (c) clause 6.2 will not apply; and
 - (d) we may separately agree with you the content and timing of reporting in relation to Transactions for the purposes of clause 9.

CITADEL | Securities

- 4.4 Regardless of whether you have been categorised as a Professional Client or an Eligible Counterparty you have the right to request categorisation as a Retail Client benefiting from a higher degree of regulatory protection. However, we are not authorised to deal with Retail Clients and accordingly, any such request by you will mean that we cannot undertake business with you.
- 4.5 You agree that you are responsible for keeping us informed about any change that could affect your client categorisation in connection with the Business Services and/or any matter which may reasonably impact our willingness to enter into Transactions or Business Services with you.
- 4.6 If you are a Professional Client we are (a) not required to assess appropriateness for non-complex financial instruments, or Business Services provided at your initiative; (b) able to assume that you have the necessary experience and knowledge to understand the risks involved in connection with the Business Services and/or Transactions entered into with you under the Agreement; and (c) entitled to assume that the Business Services provided and/or Transactions entered into with you under the Agreement are appropriate. In such cases you acknowledge that you will not benefit from certain conduct of business obligations you may otherwise benefit from.
- 4.7 Under the provisions of the Rules, Professional Clients are granted fewer protections than Retail Clients. In particular:
- (a) Professional Clients will be provided with less information with regard to the firm, its services and any investments;
 - (b) where we assess the appropriateness of a product or service, we can assume that Professional Clients have sufficient knowledge and experience to understand the risks involved;
 - (c) we may agree to provide Professional Clients with less information relating to the nature and risk profile of the financial instruments we deal in with or for them;
 - (d) we do not need to inform Professional Clients of material difficulties relevant to the proper carrying out of their order(s) promptly;
 - (e) should we provide Professional Clients with periodic statements, we are not required to provide them as frequently as for Retail Clients; and
 - (f) we may provide Professional Clients with more limited information on costs and charges than would otherwise be required under the Rules.
- 4.8 Under the provisions of the Rules, Eligible Counterparties are granted fewer protections than Professional Clients. In particular:
- (a) we do not need to assess the appropriateness of a product or service;
 - (b) we do not need to provide you with “best execution” and do not need to comply with our Execution Policy;
 - (c) we are able to, in some instances, separately agree with you the content and timing of certain reports; and

- (d) we do not have to comply with the rules and restrictions in relation to the payment or receipt of fees, commission or non-monetary benefits in connection with the services we provide.

5. BEST EXECUTION

- 5.1 Without prejudice to any other provision of this Agreement, on the basis of the nature and manner of the interaction between us and you, many of the protections ordinarily conferred by a categorisation of you as a Professional Client, including the duty of best execution, will or may not apply in our dealings with you in the context of the Business Services. For further information, please refer to our Execution Policy which has been provided to you separately or which we will provide to you on request.
- 5.2 You understand that by dealing with us, whether directly or across a third-party trading platform, or otherwise requesting or accepting our Business Services, you are consenting to the terms of our Execution Policy.
- 5.3 If, and to the extent, we are required to do so under Applicable Law, we will in accordance with Applicable Law:
 - (a) make available to the public, without charge, data relating to the quality of execution of transactions we execute acting as a systematic internaliser, market maker or liquidity provider; and/or
 - (b) summarise and make public, for each class of financial instrument: (i) the top five execution venues in terms of trading volumes where we have executed client orders in the preceding year; and (ii) information on the quality of execution obtained.

6. COSTS AND CHARGES

- 6.1 We will provide you with information on any costs and charges arising in the provision of Business Services to you as required by Applicable Law. You agree to a limited application of the requirements on the provision of information on costs and associated charges to the extent permitted by Applicable Law. Further details in this regard are provided on our website (www.citadelsecurities.com/disclosures) or such other website as may be notified to you from time to time.
- 6.2 In the course of providing Business Services to you, we may pay or receive or share fees, commissions or other non-monetary benefits with or from any other person to the extent permitted by Applicable Law, including the Rules. You will be notified separately of the details of any such arrangements if required by Applicable Law.
- 6.3 You agree to pay to us our costs and charges as notified by us to you from time to time.

7. PAYMENTS

- 7.1 All payments due to us under or in connection with the Agreement shall be made on such dates as we may specify in same day funds, in such currency as we may from time to time specify and to the bank account designated by us for such purpose.

Deduction, withholding and set-off by client

- 7.2 All payments due to us under or in connection with the Agreement shall be made (i) in full without deduction or withholding, including for or in respect of any Tax and (ii) free and clear of any right of set-off and from any restriction, condition or deduction because of any counterclaim.

Default interest

- 7.3 If you fail to pay to us any amount when it is due, we reserve the right to charge you interest (both before and after any judgment) on any such unpaid amount calculated at the rate reasonably determined by us to be the cost of funding such overdue amount. Interest will accrue on a daily basis and will be due and payable by you as a separate debt.

Payments and deliveries net

- 7.4 Where applicable, unless we expressly agree otherwise with you or give you prior notice to the contrary, all payments and deliveries between you and us (excluding your obligation to pay our costs and charges pursuant to clause 6.3) shall be made on a net basis and we shall not be obliged to make payment and/or deliver (as appropriate) to you unless and until we have received from you the appropriate documents and/or cleared funds (as appropriate).

Taxes

- 7.5 You shall at all times be fully responsible for the payment of all Tax due, making all related claims whether for exemption from Tax or otherwise, filing any Tax returns and providing any relevant Tax authorities with all necessary information, in each case in relation to any business we conduct for or with you or any investments which we hold or Transactions carried out or effected on your behalf.

Performance and settlement

- 7.6 You (or, where appropriate, for the purposes of this clause 7.6 and clause 7.7, your Principal(s)) will promptly deliver any instructions, money, documents, property (including securities) or any other item deliverable by you under or in connection with a Transaction in accordance with the terms of that Transaction as modified by any instructions given by us for the purpose of enabling us to perform our obligations pursuant to the Business Services. Furthermore, and without prejudice to the foregoing or to any other paragraph in this clause 7, for each Transaction, you will provide to us all of the information required pursuant to Applicable Law in order to minimize any potential failure in relation to the settlement of the relevant Transaction.

- 7.7 In the event that we do not receive any or all instructions, monies, documents, property (including securities) or any other relevant item from you in respect of a Transaction, or from our market counterparty, or from the market on which we are executing a Transaction (or any matching transaction to that Transaction), in accordance with the terms of the Transaction (or matching transaction), including as to timing or in freely transferable, properly endorsed, registered and fully negotiable form (a "Settlement Failure"), you acknowledge and agree that:

- (a) any instructions, monies, documents, property (including securities) or other items we do receive from you or from our market counterparty, or from the market will be due and payable to us and will not therefore constitute client money or client assets for the purposes of the Rules;

(b) in furtherance of our rights pursuant to clause 3.4, we shall not be obliged to act on any instruction and/or complete the Transaction;

(c) we may take any action that we determine (in our sole and absolute discretion) necessary or desirable to manage any risks, and/or to mitigate and claim for any losses, arising as a result of the Settlement Failure, including, without limitation, cancelling or modifying a Transaction or entering into our own transaction(s) in order to reduce our risk;

(d) we may purchase (or attempt to purchase) on any relevant market, or from a third-party, an equivalent amount of any securities which we have not received as a result of the Settlement Failure, or have not received in a timely manner or in freely transferable, properly endorsed, registered and fully negotiable form, or may purchase (or attempt to purchase) similar securities to such securities (as determined by us in our sole and absolute discretion); and

(e) where the Settlement Failure is a result of your failure to deliver any or all of the relevant instructions, monies, documents, property (including securities) or any other item (including in a timely manner or in freely transferable, properly endorsed, registered and fully negotiable form), you will be liable to us, and shall indemnify us in respect of, any losses, liabilities, claims, costs or expenses (including legal fees), Tax, imposts and levies which we or our Affiliates may incur or be subject to in connection with or arising from our taking, or refraining from taking, any of the actions described in this clause 7.7.

8. SYSTEMATIC INTERNALISER

8.1 Where we execute a Transaction with you (or, where applicable, your Principal(s)) under this Agreement and we are acting in our capacity as a systematic internaliser, we will execute that Transaction in accordance with our commercial policy and Applicable Law.

9. CONFIRMATIONS

9.1 Where we execute a Transaction with you (or, where applicable, your Principal(s)) we may provide you with a notice confirming execution under this Agreement, including where required by Applicable Law. We will assume that, unless we hear otherwise from you promptly following dispatch of any such notice (and in any event, prior to the close of business on the next London business day), you agree with the contents of the notice.

9.2 You may request information on the status of any orders you place with us at any time.

10. TRADE REPORTING

10.1 Where we execute a Transaction in respect of (i) shares, depositary receipts, ETFs, certificates and other similar financial instruments traded on a trading venue; and/or (ii) bonds, structured finance products, emission allowances and derivatives traded on a trading venue, but which are transacted outside of a trading venue, on own account, we will make the relevant Transaction information (including volume, price and the time that the Transaction was concluded) public as required by and in accordance with Applicable Law.

10.2 If you are an investment firm or credit institution, the Transaction shall be made public in accordance with Applicable Law by (i) the selling firm in the Transaction; or (ii) the buying firm in the Transaction if that is the only party acting as systematic internaliser, in which case that party shall inform the other of the action taken.

11. TRANSACTION REPORTING

- 11.1 We will comply with our obligations under the Rules and any other Applicable Law in relation to the reporting to regulators of Transactions executed with you (or, where applicable, your Principal(s)).
- 11.2 To enable us to comply with our obligations under the Rules and Applicable Law, you agree to promptly deliver to us transaction data and any other information that we may from time to time request to enable us to complete and submit transaction reports to the relevant competent authority.
- 11.3 You consent to us providing information about you (or, where applicable, your Principal(s)) and Transactions executed with you (or, where applicable, your Principal(s)) to competent authorities in the course of submitting transaction reports and to us making public relevant details of quotes provided to you and Transactions executed with you (or, where applicable, your Principal(s)) in accordance with the Rules and other Applicable Law.

12. TELEPHONE TAPING AND ELECTRONIC COMMUNICATIONS

- 12.1 To the extent permitted by Applicable Law, you agree that we may in our sole and absolute discretion record, monitor and retain all communications (including email, instant messaging, facsimile, all telephone conversations and other electronic communications) including those held between you and/or your agent and employees of us including trading, sales or settlements for the purposes of ensuring compliance with our legal and regulatory obligations and internal policies, and in connection with the services and/or Transactions contemplated by this Agreement. We may record such telephone conversations without use of a warning tone (and for the avoidance of doubt this clause 12.1 is deemed to constitute a prior notification under Article 16.7 of MiFID II). Such records will be our sole property. Our voice records will be accepted by you as conclusive evidence of the orders, instructions and conversations recorded.
- 12.2 In accordance with Applicable Law (including, without limitation, Article 16.7 of MiFID II), we shall retain such records for a period of at least five years and, where requested by the competent authority, for a period of at least seven years. The records will be available to you upon request during that period.
- 12.3 We acknowledge you may record telephone conversations and electronic conversations between us to the extent authorised by Applicable Law. You agree to provide a copy of these records to us upon request and to provide these within a reasonable timeframe.
- 12.4 We may be required under Applicable Law to provide you with certain information in a “durable medium” and may wish to do so in a durable medium other than paper. By executing the Client Consent Letter you give your express consent to us to provide this information to you by means of a durable medium that is not paper including via a client portal accessible through a secure login or email that is personally addressed to you. By executing the Client Consent Letter you also give your express consent to us to provide information which is required by Applicable Law that is not personally addressed to you by means of a website. You specifically consent to us providing this information on our website (www.citadelsecurities.com/disclosures/) or such other website as may be notified to you from time to time. This may include general information about us and our Business Services and information on costs and associated charges.

13. RISK WARNING

- 13.1 This notice is provided to you in compliance with the Rules. Please be aware that there are certain risks involved in entering into Transactions in financial instruments. You should not deal in these products unless you understand their nature and the extent of exposure to risk that you will incur.
- 13.2 All financial instruments carry a certain degree of risk, and even low risk investment strategies contain an element of uncertainty. Different instruments involve different levels of exposure to risk and in deciding whether to trade in such instruments you should be aware of the risks associated with each of these instruments. We refer you to the attached Schedule of Risk Warnings and Product Disclosures which describes both the risks of specific products, as well as generic types of risk, including, inter alia: liquidity risk, credit risk, market risk, currency risk, interest rate risk, legal/regulatory risk and operational risk.
- 13.3 The information contained in the attached Schedule 1 cannot disclose the nature of all risks of all specific products or services or disclose everything about generic types of risk. The information contained in Schedule 1 is a general description of the risks associated with the specific products or services which we may provide to you. You should not rely on the highlighted risks as being the only risks in relation to the product or service. You should always satisfy yourself that a product or service is suitable for you in light of your financial circumstances and that you fully understand the nature and risk associated with that product or service. Any risks highlighted are not to be relied upon as investment advice or a personal recommendation.

14. COMPLIANCE

- 14.1 This Agreement and our obligations under this Agreement are subject to Applicable Law and Sanctions. We shall not be in breach of any of the provisions of this Agreement or any obligation owed to you where we take or refrain from taking an action that we, in our sole discretion, consider advisable to comply with or avoid breaching Applicable Law or Sanctions. Actions that we may take or refrain from taking include but are not limited to delaying or refusing to comply with your instructions and/or closing, delaying the close of or refusing to close open or pending Transactions.

15. ADDITIONAL DISCLOSURES

- 15.1 In accordance with the Rules, in connection with the provision of Business Services, we:
- (a) will have an obligation to act honestly, fairly and professionally in accordance with your best interests;
 - (b) will ensure that any communications between us and you in connection with the provision of the Business Services are fair, clear and not misleading; and
 - (c) will ensure that any financial promotions or marketing communications sent to you by us in connection with the provision of the Business Services are clearly identifiable as such.

16. REPRESENTATIONS AND WARRANTIES

16.1 On a continuing basis, and each time you enter into a Transaction under this Agreement, you represent and warrant to us and agree that (including, where applicable, for and on behalf of any Principal(s) for whom you are acting as agent):

- (a) you have full capacity and authority to enter into (i) this Agreement, which has been duly executed by you and constitutes a valid and legally binding obligation enforceable in accordance with its terms, and (ii) each Transaction and any other documentation relating thereto, and to perform your obligations in relation to the same. Additionally, without derogation to the preceding sentence, on a continuing basis, you represent and warrant to us and agree that any delegate who purports to deal on your behalf has full capacity and authority to do so and that any arrangements entered into as a result of those dealings constitute valid and legally binding obligations for the purposes of the first sentence;

We shall work to identify where conflicts of interest are, or could be, encountered in the course of our business and which may pose a risk of material disadvantage to your interests. In response to an actual or potential conflict of interest, we may take a number of steps including (i) maintaining organisational and/or administrative arrangements to protect your interests once a conflict is identified, (ii) disclosing the existence of a conflict and seeking consent to progress where appropriate, and (iii) declining to act. SCHEDULE 1

Risk Warnings and Product Disclosures

There are significant risks inherent in investing in certain financial instruments and in certain markets. Investment in derivatives, futures, options and warrants may expose clients to risks which are different to those investors might expect when they invest in equities. Similarly, investment in shares issued by issuers in emerging markets involves risks not typically associated with equities investment in well developed markets.

Investment in any of the foregoing kinds of financial instruments is generally appropriate for sophisticated investors who understand and are able to bear the risks involved.

Among such risks, is the risk of losing the entire value of an investment or (in the case of certain derivative and other transactions) the risk of being exposed to liability over and above the initial investment. We set out below some specific risks and considerations for investors in relation to financial instruments of the type referred to above. This information is not intended to constitute a comprehensive statement of all the risks to which investors might be exposed and there may be others that exist now or which may arise in the future.

Foreign Currency and Exchange Rates

Foreign markets will involve different risks from the UK markets. In some cases the risks will be greater. Investments in foreign securities may expose investors to the risk of exchange rate fluctuation and investors who deposit collateral denominated in one currency may be subject to margin calls in circumstances where the obligations secured by such collateral are denominated in another currency (in addition to the risk of margin calls for fluctuations in relative values). Some currencies are not freely convertible and restrictions may be placed on the conversion and/or repatriation of investors' funds including any profits or dividends.

The 'gearing' or 'leverage' often obtainable in foreign currency ("fx") trading means that a small deposit or down payment can lead to large losses as well as gains. It also means that a relatively small movement can lead to a proportionately much larger movement in the value of your investment, and this can work against you as well as for you. Some fx transactions have a contingent liability which means that you may be liable for margin to maintain your position and a loss may be sustained well in excess of the premium received.

You may sustain a total loss of any margin you deposit with us to establish or maintain a position. If the market moves against you, you may be called upon to pay substantial additional margin at short notice to maintain the position. If you fail to do so within the time required, your position may be liquidated at a loss and you will be responsible for the resulting deficit.

Our insolvency or default, or that of any other dealers involved with your fx transaction, may lead to positions being liquidated or closed out without your consent. In certain circumstances, you may not get back the actual assets which you lodged as collateral and you may have to accept any available payments in cash.

Emerging Markets

Investors should be aware that there may be potential risks posed by volatile political, legal and commercial conditions in emerging markets which may affect the value of or result in the loss of investments. The quality and reliability of official data published by governments and their agencies in emerging markets might not be equivalent to that available in developed markets. In addition, the absence of developed securities markets as well as potentially underdeveloped banking and telecommunications systems in such countries may give rise to greater custody, settlement, clearing and registration risks. Foreign investment in issuers in emerging markets may be restricted – sometimes such restrictions may not be published and investors may not be readily made aware of them. In such circumstances, there may be restrictions on repatriation of capital or an investment may have to be scaled down to comply with local foreign ownership restrictions.

Bonds

A bond is a loan to a company, government or a local authority. Generally, interest is paid to you as the lender and the amount of the loan is repaid at the end of the term.

When you buy or subscribe for bonds, you become a creditor of the issuer of the bonds. The issuer might be a government or a corporate business or it may be an entity that has been formed specifically for the purposes of issuing the bonds (this is normally case where the bonds pass through to investors the cash flows generated by specific assets, such as corporate loans, residential mortgages or credit card receivables).

Bonds have a nominal value. This is the sum that will be returned to investors when the bond matures at the end of its term. However, because bonds are traded on the bond market, the price you pay for a bond may be more or less than the nominal value.

The risks associated with investing in bonds include:

- Interest rate risk – the risk that bond prices will fall as interest rates rise. By buying a bond, the bondholder has committed to receiving a fixed rate of return for a fixed period. Should the market interest rate rise from the date of the bond's purchase, the bond's price will fall accordingly. The bond will then be trading at a discount to reflect the lower return that an investor will make on the bond.
- Market interest rates are a function of several factors such as the demand for, and supply of, money in the economy, the inflation rate, the stage that the business cycle is in as well as the government's monetary and fiscal policies.
- Call risk – the risk that a bond will be called by its issuer. Callable bonds have call provisions, which allow the bond issuer to purchase the bond back from the bondholders and retire the issue. This is usually done when interest rates have fallen substantially since the issue date. Call provisions allow the issuer to retire the old, high-rate bonds and sell low-rate bonds in a bid to lower debt costs.
- Default risk – the risk that the bond's issuer will be unable to pay the contractual interest or principal on the bond in a timely manner, or at all. Credit ratings services such as Moody's, Standard & Poor's and Fitch give credit ratings to bond issues, which helps to give investors an idea of how likely it is that a payment default will occur.
- Inflation risk – the risk that the rate of price increases in the economy deteriorates the returns associated with the bond.

Bonds can be bought and sold in the market (like shares) and their price can vary from day to day. A rise or fall in the market price of a bond does not affect what you would get back if you hold the bond until it matures. You will only get back the nominal value of the bond (plus any coupon payment to which you've been entitled during your ownership of the bond), irrespective of what you paid for it.

For some bonds there may be a restricted market and it may be more difficult to deal in them or obtain reliable information about their value (and it may therefore be difficult to establish a proper market in them for the purposes of making a subsequent sale).

Some bonds generate a return that is linked to the performance of a real or notional pool of underlying assets. In such circumstances, the return you receive will depend upon the performance of the underlying pool. Many structured products take the form of bonds (see below for further details of the risks associated with structured products).

As a bondholder you could lose some or (in extreme cases) all of the money that you have invested in the bonds that you hold.

Exchange-Traded Funds

Exchange-traded funds (“ETFs”) are investment funds which hold assets such as shares, commodities or bonds. ETF are traded like shares on a trading venue, they normally closely track the performance of a financial index, and as such, their value can go down as well as up and you may get back less than you originally invested. Some ETFs are structured to rely on complex investment techniques, or hold riskier underlying assets. Leveraged ETFs will exaggerate market movements and therefore be very volatile with higher levels of risk to capital. During times of heightened market volatility, it may not always be possible for an ETF to precisely replicate the performance of an index (known as “tracking error”). While ETFs have a low tracking error and will generally closely track an index, this may not always be the case in volatile markets.

ETFs are subject to counterparty risk. If the counterparty of a derivative contract defaults, the value of an ETF investment might decrease. Risk mitigation techniques are normally implemented by manufacturers such as using multiple counterparties or holding collateral, so if one counterparty defaults they can draw the collateral to pay returns to investors.

Warrants

A warrant is a time-limited right to subscribe for shares or bonds at a particular price and is exercisable against the issuer of the warrants. The issuer of the warrants might be either the original issuer of the underlying securities or a third party issuer that has set aside a pool of the underlying securities to cover its obligations under the warrants (these are called covered warrants).

Generally, the success of investing in warrants depends primarily on how the underlying asset performs during the life of the warrant. The price of the warrants will therefore be affected by the risk factors that can affect the price of the underlying securities to which the warrant relates. A relatively small movement in the price of the underlying security results in a disproportionately large movement, unfavourable or favourable, in the price of the warrant. The prices of warrants can therefore be volatile.

The right to subscribe for underlying securities conferred by a warrant is invariably limited in time with the consequence that if the investor fails to exercise this right within the predetermined time-scale then the investment becomes worthless. The price of a warrant may reflect the value attributed to the life of the warrant.

You should not buy a warrant unless you are prepared to sustain a total loss of the money you have invested plus any commission or other transaction charges.

Transactions in off-exchange warrants may involve greater risk than dealing in exchange-traded warrants because there is no exchange market through which to liquidate your position, or to assess the value of the warrant or the exposure to risk. Bid and offer prices need not be quoted, and even where they are, they will be established by dealers in these instruments and consequently it may be difficult to establish what is a fair price.

Each warrant is a contract between the warrant issuer and the holder. You are therefore exposed to the risk that the issuer will not perform its obligations under the warrant.

Issuers of warrants sometimes reserve the right to nominate an extraordinary event which may result in the early expiry of a warrant series. The types of events which may be nominated as an extraordinary event are set out in the terms of issue of a warrant series.

Examples of extraordinary events include suspension in trading of the underlying security, the de-listing of the underlying company and a takeover of the underlying company. As a consequence of an extraordinary event the warrant's expiry date may be brought forward, or the warrant may lapse with any intrinsic payment provided to the holder.

Futures

Transactions in futures involve the obligation to make, or to take, delivery of the underlying asset of the contract at a future date, or in some cases to settle the position with cash. They carry a high degree of risk. The performance of a futures contract depends primarily on how the underlying asset performs during the life of the contract. The value of the future can therefore be affected by any of the risk factors that can affect the price of the underlying asset to which the futures contract relates. The "gearing" or "leverage" often obtainable in futures trading means that a small deposit or down payment can lead to large losses as well as gains. It also means that a relatively small movement can lead to a proportionately much larger movement in the value of your investment, and this can work against investors as well as for you.

Futures transactions have a contingent liability which means that you may be liable for margin to maintain your position and a loss may be sustained well in excess of the premium received. By entering into a futures contract, you accept a legal obligation to purchase or sell the underlying asset, however far the market price has moved away from the agreed price.

You may sustain a total loss of any margin you deposit with us to establish or maintain a position. If the market moves against you, you may be called upon to pay substantial additional margin at short notice to maintain the position. If you fail to do so within the time required, your position may be liquidated at a loss and you will be responsible for the resulting deficit.

Our insolvency or default, or that of any other brokers involved with your futures transaction, may lead to positions being liquidated or closed out without your consent. In certain circumstances, you may not get back the actual assets which you lodged as collateral and you may have to accept any available payments in cash.

Futures may be executed on an investment exchange or on an OTC basis. While some OTC markets are highly liquid, transactions in OTC derivatives may involve greater risk than investing in on-exchange derivatives because there is no exchange market on which to close out an open position. It may be impossible to liquidate an existing position, to assess the value of the position arising from an OTC transaction or to assess the exposure to risk. Bid prices and offer prices need not be quoted, and, even where they are, they will be established by dealers in these instruments and consequently it may be difficult to establish what is a fair price.

Options

An option gives the buyer of the option the right (but not the obligation) to acquire an underlying security or other asset at a price that has already been agreed or that is determinable in accordance with pre-agreed mechanism. There are many different types of options with different characteristics subject to the following conditions.

Buying options: Buying options involves less risk than selling options because, if the price of the underlying asset moves against you, investors can simply allow the option to lapse. The maximum loss is limited to the premium, plus any commission or other transaction charges. However, if investors buy a call option on a futures contract and investors later exercise the option, they will acquire the future. This will expose investors to the risks described under “futures” and “contingent liability investment transactions”.

Writing options: If investors write an option, the risk involved is considerably greater than buying options. Investors may be liable for margin to maintain their position and a loss may be sustained well in excess of the premium received. By writing an option, investors accept a legal obligation to purchase or sell the underlying asset if the option is exercised against them however far the market price has moved away from the exercise price. If you already own the underlying asset which you have contracted to sell (when the options will be known as “covered call options”) the risk is reduced. If you do not own the underlying asset (“uncovered call options”) the risk can be unlimited. Only experienced persons should contemplate writing uncovered options, and then only after securing full details of the applicable conditions and potential risk exposure.

Certain options markets operate on a margined basis, under which buyers do not pay the full premium on their option at the time they purchase it. In this situation you may subsequently be called upon to pay margin on the option up to the level of your premium. If you fail to do so as required, your position may be closed or liquidated in the same way as a futures position.

The performance of an option that you have written depends primarily on how the underlying asset performs during the life of the option. The value of the option can therefore be affected by any risk factors that can affect the price of the underlying asset to which the option relates. A relatively small movement in the price of the underlying asset can result in a disproportionately large movement, unfavourable or favourable, in the value of the option. The prices of options can therefore be volatile.

If you write options, you may sustain a total loss of any margin you deposit with us to establish or maintain a position. If the market moves against you, you may be called upon to pay substantial additional margin at short notice to maintain the position. If you fail to do so within the time required, your position may be liquidated at a loss and you will be responsible for the resulting deficit.

Even if a written option transaction is not margined, it may still carry an obligation to make further payments in certain circumstances over and above any amount paid when you entered the contract.

Our insolvency or default, or that of any other brokers involved with your option transaction, may lead to positions being liquidated or closed out without your consent. In certain circumstances, you may not get back the actual assets which you lodged as collateral and you may have to accept any available payments in cash.

On many exchanges, the performance of a transaction by the relevant broker is 'guaranteed' by the exchange or clearing house. However, this guarantee is unlikely in most circumstances to cover you, the customer, and may not protect you if the broker or another party defaults on its obligations to you. On request, we can explain the extent of any protection provided to you under the clearing guarantee applicable to any on-exchange derivatives in which you are dealing. There is no clearing house for traditional options, nor normally for OTC instruments.

Options may be executed on an investment exchange or on an OTC basis. While some OTC markets are highly liquid, transactions in OTC derivatives may involve greater risk than investing in on-exchange derivatives because there is no exchange market on which to close out an open position. It may be impossible to liquidate an existing position, to assess the value of the position arising from an OTC transaction or to assess the exposure to risk. Bid prices and offer prices need not be quoted, and, even where they are, they will be established by dealers in these instruments and consequently it may be difficult to establish what is a fair price.

Contracts for Differences (“CFD”)

Futures and options contracts can also be referred to as contracts for differences. These can be options and futures on the FTSE 100 index or any other index, as well as currency and interest rate swaps, spread bets and rolling spot foreign exchange contracts. However, unlike other futures and options, these contracts can only be settled in cash. Investing in a contract for differences carries the same risk as investing in a future or an option and investors should be aware of these as set out above.

The 'gearing' or 'leverage' often obtainable in CFD trading means that a small deposit or down payment can lead to large losses as well as gains. It also means that a relatively small movement can lead to a proportionately much larger movement in the value of your investment, and this can work against you as well as for you. CFD transactions have a contingent liability which means that you may be liable for margin to maintain your position and a loss may be sustained well in excess of the premium received.

You may sustain a total loss of any margin you deposit with us to establish or maintain a position. If the market moves against you, you may be called upon to pay substantial additional margin at short notice to maintain the position. If you fail to do so within the time required, your position may be liquidated at a loss and you will be responsible for the resulting deficit.

Our insolvency or default, or that of any other brokers involved with your CFD transaction, may lead to positions being liquidated or closed out without your consent. In certain circumstances, you may not get back the actual assets which you lodged as collateral and you may have to accept any available payments in cash.

On many exchanges, the performance of a transaction by the relevant broker is 'guaranteed' by the exchange or clearing house. However, this guarantee is unlikely in most circumstances to cover you, the customer, and may not protect you if the broker or another party defaults on its obligations to you. On request, we can explain the extent of any protection provided to you under the clearing guarantee applicable to any on-exchange derivatives in which you are dealing. There is no clearing house for most CFDs as they are executed on an OTC basis.

CFD transactions may be executed on an investment exchange or on an OTC basis. While some OTC markets are highly liquid, transactions in OTC derivatives may involve greater risk than investing in on-exchange derivatives because there is no exchange market on which to close out an open position. It may be impossible to liquidate an existing position, to assess the value of the position arising from an OTC transaction or to assess the exposure to risk. Bid prices and offer prices need not be quoted, and, even where they are, they will be established by dealers in these instruments and consequently it may be difficult to establish what is a fair price.

Structured Products

CITADEL | Securities

Structured Products are products structured to fulfil a particular trading or market objective. A structured product may combine the features of two or more financial instruments (for example a bond and a derivative). Derivatives often constitute an integral part of a structured product. The product may involve an element of leverage and so a relatively small movement in the value of the relevant underlying asset or index may have a significant effect on the value of the structured product.

Structured products are generally not traded on regulated markets and you take the risk on the counterparty issuing the structure. There is typically no recognised market for these investments and it may, therefore, be difficult for you to deal in the investment or to obtain reliable information about its value or the extent of the risks to which it is exposed.

Some structured products include an element of capital protection – however, you should bear in mind that this is not a guarantee that the amount invested will be returned in all circumstances. The capital protection offered is typically subject to the investment being held until maturity and to the creditworthiness of the issuer.

Structured products are often high risk investments and you could lose some or all of the money that you have invested in them.

Equities

Investments may include equity securities and equivalents of issuers in multiple jurisdictions, including issuers in emerging markets, of any market capitalisation. Equity securities may include common and preferred shares and warrants and equivalents (including convertible securities). A share is an instrument representing a shareholder's rights in a company. One share represents a fraction of a corporation's share capital. Dividend payments and an increase in the value of the security are both possible, although not guaranteed. The shareholder has financial and ownership rights which are determined by law and the issuing company's articles of association (or equivalent constitutional documents).

Dealing in shares may involve risks including but not limited to the following: (i) company risk, a share purchaser does not lend funds to the company but becomes a co-owner of the company and participates in its development as well as in chances for profits and losses, which makes it difficult to forecast the precise yield on such an investment; (ii) price risk, share prices may undergo unforeseeable price fluctuations causing risks of loss. Price increases and decreases in the short, medium and long term alternate without it being possible to determine the duration of those cycles. General market risk must be distinguished from the specific risk attached to the company itself. Both risks, jointly or in aggregate, influence share prices; and (iii) dividend risk, the dividend per share mainly depends on the issuing company's earnings and on its dividend policy. In case of low profits or losses, dividend payments may be reduced or not made.

Contingent Liability Investment Transactions

Contingent liability investment transactions, which are margined, may require you to make a series of payments apart from any initial payment or premium.

If you trade in futures, contracts for differences or sell options, you may sustain a total loss of the margin you deposit to establish or maintain a position. If the market moves against you, you may be called upon to pay substantial additional margin at short notice to maintain the position. If you fail to do so within the time required, your position may be liquidated at a loss and you will be responsible for the resulting deficit. Even if a transaction is not margined, it may still carry an obligation to make further payments in certain circumstances over and above any amount paid when you entered the contract.

Collateral

If you deposit collateral as security with us for transactions you enter into, the way in which it will be treated will vary according to the type of transaction and where it is traded. There could be significant differences in the treatment of your collateral, depending on whether you are trading on a recognised or designated investment exchange, with the rules of that exchange (and any associated clearing house) applying, or trading off-exchange. Collateral may lose its identity as your property once dealings on your behalf are undertaken, particularly where you transfer the title to such collateral and 'right to use' provisions apply. Even if your dealings should ultimately prove profitable, you may not get back the same assets which you deposited, and may have to accept payment in cash.
