Sandy Rehler and Eric DeHays are two of the amazing education leaders at Ashburnham Westminster Regional School District in Massachusetts.

Sandy is the Curriculum Coordinator, and Eric is the Technology Coordinator, and they're both dedicated to finding ways to challenge their advanced students, while also helping students that are below grade level catch up.

Chosen by teachers

Looking for a program to help all of their students grow in math, Sandy and Eric decided the best approach was to get significant input from their teachers.

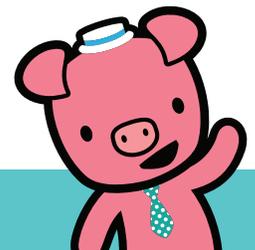

“Our teachers went out and looked at a wide variety of different programs,” said Sandy, “and Freckle was the one they decided would best meet their needs.”

With the enthusiasm and support of their teachers, Sandy and Eric rolled out Freckle and were very impressed by the growth of their students.

Student growth

“We've seen significant growth across the board, especially for our lower performing students,” beamed Sandy.

“In particular,” Sandy continued, “our 6th graders have shown remarkable results. One of our 6th-grade math teachers is a Freckle Ambassador who lives and dreams Freckle. She is great at using it to help her students grow.”

Equipped with the data from Freckle, the teachers at Ashburnham Westminster have started to set specific, measurable goals for their classes.

Sandy explained: “Our teachers write their goals at the beginning of the year by using data from Freckle. Then, when it comes time to review progress, our teachers come forward and bring all of the data with them straight from Freckle.”

World-class customer service

For both Sandy and Eric, one of the things they appreciate most about Freckle is the phenomenal level of support they receive.

Eric remarked, “This has been the most responsive company in my 18 years of Ed Tech. We asked for changes and reports and they were there a day or two later! Freckle truly catered the program to what we needed and wanted.”

Sandy wholeheartedly agreed: “Freckle has gone above and beyond for us. Emily, our Account Manager, has been a godsend.”

A true partner

We’re so proud that the Ashburnham Westminster Regional School District team is a part of the Freckle family! They’re doing so much great work to help deliver a world-class education to each of their students.
