(NEW YORK) April 28, 2022 – Ailey Extension is encouraging New York City’s young dancers to get moving during National Physical Fitness Month with the return of in-studio Kids & Teens classes and special workshops. Starting in May, fully vaccinated kids (ages 5-11) and teens (ages 12-17) can enjoy class in Ailey’s studios at the Joan Weill Center for Dance – NYC’s largest building dedicated to dance – to have fun while learning hip-hop, ballet, West African, contemporary and Broadway Jazz in a welcoming and nurturing environment with their peers. Classes for kids and teens are designed to help children of all experience levels explore movement and learn the healthy habit of exercising at an early age.

The Kids & Teens Sunday Dance Series returns from May 8 – June 25 allowing students to let loose in a judgment free-zone. Taught by Ailey Extension’s elite instructors; every class takes into consideration the abilities of each age group to curate a supportive environment that fosters learning skills while socializing with peers. Former Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater Company member Linda Celeste Sims will help kids learn the fundamentals of ballet and introduce teens to contemporary technique; while Yukako Kawazu will help teens gain confidence and build self-esteem through ballet; and Yancy Greene will teach students of all ages how to move to hip-hop. Students are encouraged to sign up for the full six-week session; drop-ins are also available on a weekly basis with prior registration.

Summer Kids at Ailey invites youngsters ages 5-7 to develop coordination and musicality as they practice the fundamentals of street style dance in Intro to Hip-Hop and learn ballet vocabulary during Intro to Ballet. Kids ages 8-11 can further their dance vocabulary while progressing at the barre in Ballet for Kids and build on precision and performance quality in Hip-Hop 4 Kids.
Summer Teens at Ailey provides a judgment-free zone for teenagers to boost confidence as they dive into dance and sharpen their skills. Junior Contemporary teaches students between 12-14 to master musically as they develop a strong foundation to dance, while Junior Hip-Hop helps build on their understanding of fundamental street style movements, and coordination. Dancers between 15-17 can focus on classic party moves and energetic hip hop routines in Teen Hip-Hop; or explore a wide range of expressive movements while learning original choreography in Teen Contemporary classes. Students ages 12-17 can come together for Junior/Teen Ballet where they'll gain confidence as they develop a better understanding of body alignment and learn ballet terminology as well as combinations.

In addition to these weekly classes, dancers ages 10-17 years can join special workshops designed to help students explore new techniques and enhance their freedom of expression. On Saturday, May 21 at 11am Sherece Donalds will lead young dancers in a lively Kids & Teens West African Workshop. This class will focus on the fundamentals of traditional West African dance with an emphasis on helping participants understand the accompanying drum rhythms. Broadway star and Ailey Extension instructor Judine Somerville will introduce dancers to the world of theater dance during a Kids & Teens Broadway Jazz Workshop on Saturday June 11 at 11am filled with show tunes from beginning to end. Ideal for students who love Broadway, this class will teach kids how to perform with confidence as they’re also taught the history of the song, artists, and its influence in musical theater history.

As Ailey opens its doors to the public, the health and well-being of all dancers, students, instructors, and staff remains a top priority. An Ailey Forward re-entry plan to safely welcome dancers, instructors, and staff to The Joan Weill Center for Dance has been developed and continues to be updated with consideration of all government and regulatory guidelines as well as information from health professionals. All visitors to the building – including students, instructors, and staff – will be required to submit proof of full vaccination, have their temperature taken upon arrival, and wear masks while indoors.
