DEDICATED TO D.C.: A few months after its performance at the Kennedy Center, Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater held its Washington Gala at Wolf Trap and raised nearly $850,000 to benefit local programs and scholarships for area students to attend The Ailey School in New York City. Guests enjoyed drinks and dinner in heavenly spring weather. Artistic Director Robert Battle and Board Member/Event Chairwoman Sela Collins spoke to an audience of more than 200. Other organizers spotted in the crowd included Lyndon K. Boozer, Lisa Warner Wardell and Velberton R. Watkins. Élan Artists rounded out the evening with music as board members and guests swayed under the sparkling lights and stars.

GOLF LOVERS REJOICE: Sports royalty, VIPs and golf enthusiasts gathered to celebrate the opening of PXG’s new 7,000-square-foot brick and mortar golf showroom and retail shop in Fairfax, Va. The popular brand is a passion project of GoDaddy’s founder, billionaire Bob Parsons and his wife Renee, who serves as president and executive creative director of the brand’s apparel line. Expanding into the Washington, D.C. metro area was a natural next step in the brand’s expansion, Renee Parsons explained, noting that it ranks as the nation’s 7th largest golf market. The launch party welcomed current and former athletes, including Santana Moss, Jonathan Allen, Logan Thomas, Montee Sweat, Terry McLaurin, Josh Jackson, Ken Harvey and Cathy Kim. Vietnam veteran Bob Parsons never misses a chance to spotlight America’s bravest and at each store opening, of which there will be 24 across the country before year’s end. The event kicked off with a special rendition of the National Anthem performed by Calvin Bishop and Big Swing & the Ballroom Blasters. In addition to a practice putting green, PXG’s state-of-the-art facility features an expansive retail showroom with the brand’s latest apparel, accessories and bags. FASHION FOREWARD: Renee Parsons’ sleek, contemporary designs are influenced by her penchant for high fashion streetwear and the many couture runway shows she has attended over the last decade.
