

This is to inform you of a voluntary product recall of:

GARDASIL[®] 9 (Human Papillomavirus 9-valent Vaccine, Recombinant),
Lot N029069 and Lot M743R56

Merck has initiated this voluntary recall because a limited number of prefilled syringes in Lot N029069 may be labeled with an incorrect lot number and expiration date. Merck began shipping Lot N029069 on April 2, 2018. The incorrect lot number that may be printed on prefilled syringes is Lot M743R56 and the incorrect expiration date is 01/02/03. The table below shows the lot and expiry information for the GARDASIL 9 prefilled syringes that are the subject of this recall.

	Lot	Expiry
Correct	N029069	17MAY2020
Incorrect	M743R56	01/02/03

The incorrect lot number and expiry is a default setting of the label printer. This printing error has no effect on the safety, potency, or efficacy of any prefilled syringes of GARDASIL 9. All prefilled syringes within these lots are within expiry. If product labeled Lot N029069 or Lot M743R56 has been administered to a patient, revaccination is not necessary, but you should confirm that the patient's medical record reflects the correct lot and expiry.

The supply of GARDASIL 9 will not be impacted by this recall. GARDASIL 9 Lot N029069 and Lot M743R56 are the only lots impacted by the recall and were distributed solely within the United States. There is adequate inventory to replace recalled product at this time.
