

Exploring Seasons

Peter loves hats, and he is wearing his favorite fall hat today. He is going on a special nature walk with his mom.

They are finding materials to make an autumn corner in their house to celebrate the season.

As they walk through the park, they find lots of things:

brightly colored leaves,
an apple that has fallen off a tree,
a small pumpkin,
and a goose feather.

His mother tells him that geese fly south in the autumn and come back in the spring.

Peter wants to make a collection for each season. His mom helps him think about what happens in each season.

First, she helps him remember winter. Peter enjoys playing in the snow and wearing his warm, fuzzy hat. He remembers that pine trees stay green, and holly has red berries.

What do you think Peter should add to his collection for winter?

Next, he remembers some things about spring. He loves when the flowers begin to grow, seeing baby animals, and watching birds build nests. It's his favorite season.

What do you think Peter should add to his spring collection?

Finally, Peter's mom helps him remember what he saw in the summer. He ate watermelon, went to the swimming pool, saw bumble bees, and enjoyed sunny days. He liked eating ice cream with his family too.

What do you think Peter should add to his summer collection?

Peter rushes home to find things to add to his season collection.

Let's see what he created!
