

Masterpiece Sentences Step 6

Well, we've come a long way from the birds fly, and I think this sentence does a much better job of putting an image in the reader's mind. At sunset with wings outstretched, a pair-- I can edit that out.

So let's take one last look at this sentence and make sure everything is perfect, perfect, perfect. And we take a closer look at this sentence. I think seagulls is actually one word and not two, but everything else looks pretty close. I don't see any misspelled words, and all the commas seem to be where they need to be. The punctuation seems right. So I think once we fix this little mistake here, we are ready to frame this picture and call it done.

At sunset with wings outstretched, a pair of silhouetted seagulls emerge from the clouds and soar above the rolling tide. And that is our masterpiece sentence.
