Fun activities to do at home with an adult.

Easy as Pie
Don't throw out that foil pie pan! Carefully punch holes around the edge of the pan. Using metal twist ties, attach small objects to the pie pan—like paper clips, bells, and keys—that will make fun noises when you shake it. You can even decorate it with acrylic paint.

Groovy Guitar
You can make a guitar with just an empty tissue box and a bunch of rubber bands. The hole in the middle of a tissue box is a great place for sound to travel through. Stretch rubber bands around the box. Experiment by using different sizes of rubber bands. Stretch the rubber bands across the short end of the box. Then try stretching them across the box the long way. Which sounds do you like better?

Crystal Concert
You can use drinking glasses, water and spoons to make beautiful music. Fill up drinking glasses with different amounts of water. The more water you have in a glass, the lower the sound. Gently tap the glasses with your metal spoon. Gentle tapping will give you the best sound.

Harmonious Harmonica
You can make a harmonica from things you find around the house! All you need is a small pocket comb and a 4-inch square of waxed paper. Simply fold the waxed paper in half and sandwich the comb inside of the wax paper. To make sounds, press your lips lightly against the comb. Try moving it back and forth to hear the different sounds it makes.

Musical Shoes!
Why not make music while you’re dancing around your bedroom? You can sew bells onto an old pair of socks or string them to your sneaker laces. Or try gluing pennies to the toes and heels of an old pair of sneakers. You’ll sound like a tap-dancer when you’re walking. Use a strong glue, like epoxy.
