

IDOLS

© 2014 Jessa Anderson (Wanderlove Publishing/SESAC)

V1 I am so like a bird in flight, I try to build my home
I set my eyes on anything that shines and tells me it will make me whole
I stack the walls surrounding me with promises and pretty things
But when I see what winter brings, I fly

CH And as it turns out, this fickle heart in my chest
Sometimes it beats for everything but what is best
And when I turn down this voice I hear in my head
I give You room to speak and offer life instead
So take all of these idols, all of these idols and lay them to rest
So take all of these idols, all of my idols

V2 And all this time, addicted, I – desperate for more and more
I chase the high, but every single time I come down lower than before
These empty words are on repeat and I can see they're killing me
But still I find that I believe the lies

BR I am a well run dry, I am a clouded, starless sky
Without Your breath of life I would surely die
But You gave your life for mine

STAY

V1 Another yelling match here in the living room
A personal attack is thrown from me to you
And then you give it back, and slam the door and drive away
And all you're thinking is, "Don't know how much more I can take"

V2 'Cause when we started out, wide eyed and unafraid
Thought we would never doubt the promises we made
But disillusioned now, 'cause nothing seems to be the same
And we are wondering just how much more that we can take

CH You can run, you can hide if you want to Tell yourself that somehow it will change you
Make your mark, then you leave when the bottom falls out
You can leave, you could go, but it'd be a mistake
Can't you see, don't you know that we're in this the same?
You can run, you can hide, or you could just stay, stay

V3 If we could work it out, if we could pull it through We'd see so much will change inside of me and you
Where there was empty ground will be a garden full of grace
Illuminated by the sun but watered by the rain

BR So when the night seems like it might never end
Close your eyes, say a prayer, and begin again
Let the cracks and the flaws help you realize
That something beautiful is waiting on the other side

GIVING YOUR HEART AWAY

© 2014 Jessa Anderson (Wanderlove Publishing/SESAC)

V1 The air was cold, but she swore that she didn't notice
'Cause this was better than she'd felt in a long time
Not quite love, but it sure felt nice there on the grass sitting close to his side
Listening to his heart keep time and watching the light die

V2 The sky grew black, but the stars were bright
And she was feeling like a bird on the first flight
Not quite wrong and not quite right
But she so desperately wanted to fly

CH And that's the thing about giving your heart away
You never know when you'll see you're missing a piece
Until you find out too little, too late
You didn't notice that you were bleeding
Now the life is gone from your eyes
You're just a memory frozen in time
And that's the thing about giving your heart away
Giving your heart away

V3 Her hands would shake when she said goodbye
She never meant to hurt a heart that was so kind Searching for words to apologize with her mistakes burning bright in his eyes
Unwelcome tears that he'd try to fight spilling out, slowly running him dry

BR Said it was love, but I didn't believe him Feel like I'm locked inside without a key and If I could only collect all the pieces that I have given up
Maybe it'd be enough

EVERYTHING

V1 This is love, not that I could love but that I'm loved by One
Who loves at any cost, even to death You've gone and stand victorious

PC And when I think about all You've done, Jesus I am overcome

CH You know it hits me like a tidal wave
And I buckle down beneath the weight of All You are, no less than Everything
I am helpless but to speak Your name
The sweetest sound I'll ever make
With all my heart, I'm giving Everything

V2 This is grace, nothing that I could make but that You took my place
To conquer sin and shame, and to return our hearts to You for whom we're made

PC And when I think about all You've done, Jesus I am overcome

BR Perfect Son of God, how You love us, how You love us
So thank You for the blood that has covered and reclaimed us
To restore us, to remake us

CAN'T BE SAVED

© 2014 Jessa Anderson (Wanderlove Publishing/SESAC)

V1 This ship is going down and I suggest that you don't get too close
You'll suffer with me as I break into pieces
Those dreams are already dashed upon the rocks that lie in wait below
And what you think you see, well it's all on the surface

PC You'll swear that all it takes is a call for help and a white flag
Or a flare to the sky, a desperate cry, we'll be out of here in no time

CH But darling some of us, we can't be saved, we can't be saved
We're destined to be tossed among the waves and there we'll stay
Just singing the song of a siren, I'm so sorry you followed it here
So take what you can and make it to land and far, far away
'Cause some of us just can't be saved

V2 It's lonely on the sea but every once in a while comes someone Who tries and tries to put the anchor down
But soon they will find that every time there's a reason I'm still drifting
And I'll be right here until I drown

PC You'll swear that all it takes is a call for help and a white flag
Or a flare to the sky, a desperate cry, we'll be out of here in no time

BR They say if you look close enough at the bottom
You might see just a little piece of what you thought was love

CAUGHT ME BY SURPRISE

V1 Well I don't know how we got together but I'm glad we did You said hello and before I could stop it I was falling in One look in your eyes, I was mesmerized right there and then
And suddenly realized just how much I'd been missing

CH Little did I know that I was only seeing black and white
Living shades of gray, still I thought that I was doing fine
But now the colors seem so bright
You caught me by surprise

V2 Just like any ordinary day when it began
But the stars would align and our worlds would collide, this is not happenstance
Just one look in your eyes I felt like taking my chances
And every day since then has been nothing but magic

BR So much more than next in line, for the rest of my life you'll be by my side

NEVER THE SAME

© 2014 Jessa Anderson (Wanderlove Publishing/SESAC)

V1 This might be hard to say, but I will do my best
To tell it just the way that I remember it Might not be sugar sweet, might be a little messy
Not who I want to be, but how You found me then

V2 So I'll tell them who You are and what You've done for me
When I took it all apart, fallen and fumbling
Your spirit gave me life, illuminated the night
You broke me open wide to let Your light shine in

CH Sometimes You boom like the blast from a cannon
And sometimes You come like the rush of a wave and Sometimes You move like wind on the water
With barely a sound or a sign that You came However You come, I am never the same, never the same

V3 More than a little bit, this passion overwhelms
My very soul within and I've got to let it out
I want to make You known with every breath in my lungs
Until there's nothing more, until the work is done

BR Now all I want to do is tell everybody how Your love has overcome the deepest of my needs and I Could never quite express the way that you've changed me now
But I will do my best, yes I will do my best

BREAKDOWN

© 2014 Jessa Anderson (Wanderlove Publishing/SESAC)

V1 When every line is crossed and every word is spoken
When every drop of blood has been spilled out and every hope is gone
With every weapon drawn and every wound inflicted
When you are the only one left standing, can you really say you've won?

CH All you were looking for was just some happiness
But now that it's gone you're left with such a bitter taste
So what will it take, tell me what will it take
What will it take for you to break down?

V2 Well every little step amounts to a journey taken
And when you reach the end of it there's nothing that can be undone
So every bullet fired and every forced explosion
Is taking from everyone in it's path not just the target chosen

CH2 All you were looking for was just some happiness
But now that it's gone you're left with such a bitter taste
So what will it take, tell me what will it take
What will it take for you to break down?
I guess this is the way that you exist and remain
All regrets and mistakes until you break down
So what will it take, tell me what will it take
What will it take for you to break down?

STORY OF GRACE

© 2014 Jessa Anderson (Wanderlove Publishing/SESAC)

V1 Well they say that there's safety in numbers
So then why am I still so afraid?
'Cause I know that I can't be the only one who feels this way
Still I struggle with every letter as I'm trying to fill this page
But the words they are caught in my safety net as I filter them all away

CH Yet I know You hear even what I can't say
Though my mouth is silent my heart cries for strength
So let the words come one by one
Goodness and healing from my tongue
That I'd find Your glory even in my pain
Let my life tell the story of grace

V2 Oh the path with the least resistance seemed the easier one to take
But at the end I regret each and every step and excuse that I made on the way
But Your promise is already spoken of a love that is ever the same
Would you teach me to trust in Your grace enough to expose what I hide away

BR It's in my deepest need You're glorified in me
So let my story be the story of Your grace
Of how You set me free and gave me words to speak
So that my life would be the story of Your grace

WHOLE

V1 Is there anything more than what we've got right in front of us or is this all I'll ever have?

And if I never amount to any more than I am right now is this my happily ever end?

Over and over and on repeat the same questions are haunting me of what is true, and do I believe

CH Every single heart is waiting for a love

Is looking for someone who will not let go

In the deepest part of everything we are

We want to be enough, want our worth to show

More and more I believe that we cannot pretend to be whole

V2 If He really did come to right the fall, pay once for all of us, take all the burden and the sin

If the curtain was rent, the sky was black, and the spear went in to pour down the last of a covenant

If death was beginning instead of end, then who I am now was determined then

BR And when He said "It is finished", it was finished then

He gave us what we don't deserved and paved the way to righteousness

CH2 Every single heart is waiting for a love

Is looking for someone who will not let go

In the deepest part of everything we are

We want to be enough, want our worth to show

Jesus help me believe, 'cause You have done what we could never

And still in my disbelief, for all my questions You the answer

More and more I see You are the only one who makes us whole
