

Is there a place in this world for a fool

Eric Gibson, Leigh Gibson, Stephen Mouglin

Is there a place in this world for a fool

A halfway house for losers, who can't get over you

Where I can wish away my me-mo-ry and start my life anew -----

Is there a place in this world for a fool

I can see the life that we've been living

Forbidden love is not too hard to find

I told my heart that I would stop forgiving

But I keep coming back to you each time

I hate myself for having such a weakness

Always winding up outside your door

Hurtings built a wicked bond between us

So why do I keep coming back for more

Foolish people live a life of misery

Based upon the choices that we make

Folks like me just keep repeating history

'Cause we can't seem to learn from our mistakes
