

New Beginnings

Kelly Smith/Stephen Mouglin

(Kelly Smith Publishing ASCAP, Timberdoodle Tunes ASCAP)

August 7, 2017

Well here we go again today, another shoe just dropped
I'm an expert in the art of being wrong
I'm doing things I've always done and I don't know how to stop
I'm tired of pretending I belong gotta find another way to carry on

You can plant a seed in the cold wet ground and watch a flower grow
Like robins in the springtime will chase the winter snow
As sure as the rain falls, the sun will shine again
I see a new beginning 'round the bend

I see a path before me so I'll take another step
Life's a journey to the great unknown
I'm changing out of desperation, leaving my regrets
Not waiting 'round to see my name in stone
And find a little meaning on my own