

“Carrying on a lineage that starts in olden times with the Irish Rovers and continues right through to Spirit of the West and the Town Pants, the Kailyarders bleed shamrock-shake green...”

Kailyarders is a good-time celtic-folk band out of the Lower Mainland that loves the joy and energy of playing live.

Based out of Vancouver BC, Kailyarders has been putting the beat in East Coast and celtic music since 2013, when Collin Wade (voice, guitar), Bruce McKillican (voice, bodhran, accordion, whistle, flute) and Chris Williscroft (bass, mandolin) joined up to make a noise. The noise was good, and over the years, with the addition of Shamma Shabir on fiddle, the noise improved.

We threw some Pogues, Great Big Sea, Gaelic Storm, trad and modern celtic, walloping fiddle, even a wee KISS, along with crowd-proven originals into a mulligan stew and the crowds liked the noise, asking us, could we please make the noise for them, please. Dozens of shows later, from the Fusion Fest, Highland Games, CelticFest 2017 (rocking St. Patrick's Day), radio shows and lots of repeat shows, punters from 6 to 86 love us.

With sizzling violin and full harmonies, bang-up beat and tear-tugging ballads, Kailyarders proves you don't need 15 piece drums and howling Marshall stacks to generate onstage energy. Celtic music is about good times and we ensure your crowd has a ball. We tailor our setlists to the crowd – sit-down, jump-around, corporate, East Coast theme nights, festival, weddings, parole parties, whatever.

Having a great time is why we play this music, and why your patrons will be glad you booked us.

We come fully equipped with PA, professional attitude and humour to spare. Book us – we'll all be glad you did.
